Archer Completes 25 Years With Pickaway SWCD

Don Archer, conservationist with the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, today begins his 26th year of service to Pickaway County.

Archer came to Pickaway County, his first assignment with the United States Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, Jan. 8, 1951. He and his wife, Geneva, were the parents of a 6-month-old child at the time and he was not sure if the assignment here would be for two days, two months, two years or longer.

Jim Muster was the chief conservationist for the county then and the office was located in the Pythian Castle.

An ardent conservationist, Archer was raised on a farm in Noble County. He served in the United States Coast Guard for three and one half years during World War II.

Following his discharge from the service he attended Ohio State University, graduating from the college of agriculture with a bachelor's degree in animal science. He had minors in agronomy and agriculture engineering. Following his graduation he taught school for about two years in Noble County before beginning his service with the SCS.

His wife is a registered nurse and is also a graduate of Ohio State University. They were schoolmates back in Noble County. The eldest Archer son, Tom, is now 25, and is a graduate of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture. He is presently employed with the land management division of Ohio Power Co. The younger son, Don W., is a senior at the Ohio State University College of Agriculture, majoring in ag education. Archer, as can be seen, is as enthusiastic about Ohio State as he is about conservation. "The finest education is available there for the student who truly wants it," he contends.

Archer has seen many changes during his 25 years serving the citizens of Pickaway County. In 1951 there were about 100 cooperators in the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District and the average farm unit was about 120 acres in size.

Today there are 769 cooperators and the average farm unit is over 230 acres. But there are many cooperators managing over 1,000 acres.

During all his years with the service, the objective has been "to help all land users plan the land so it will not deteriorate the resource base," Archer says.

Originally, the services of the office were entirely for the agriculture community, but now are available for all land users—the home owner, developer, realtor, industry and the various levels of local government.

Over the years giant strides have been taken in improving the drainage of soils but drainage still remains among the number one problems of land users according to Archer.

In 25 years, he has assisted farmers in installing seven million feet of tile, over 93 miles of open ditches and has provided engineering in designing over 500 ponds that have been constructed throughout the county. All of these ponds have been stocked. In addition, over 100 erosion control structures have been planned and 1½ million feet of diversions designed by the office.

For the agriculture cooperator, some of the newer innovations promoted by the service include minimum tillage and crop residue management. The latter is land management in such a fashion that the

Ohio Shivers As Winter Storm Rakes Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first big snowstorm of the winter for much of Ohio snarled traffic, triggered a rash of minor accidents and forced cancellation of schools many places in the state.

Travelers advisories were issued Wednesday as sleet, then up to seven inches of snow fell in the snow belt east of Cleveland of the state. Snow accumulated one to two inches in northwestern Ohio, and two to five inches elsewhere.

Classes were cancelled for Cincinnati's 68,000 school children today because of icy roads and hazardous conditions. Classes were also cancelled in Columbus.

The cold front early today was moving eastward through the Atlantic coastal states, and most of the snow was ending in Ohio.

However, snow squalls are expected during the day off Lake Erie in northeastern Ohio for additional accumulations.

Cleveland and Columbus reported a rash of minor accidents during rush-hour traffic Wednesday.

Police in Cleveland and its suburbs said afternoon traffic was delayed by up to an hour because of slippery roads.

Southbound lanes on Interstate 71 about 20 miles north of Columbus were closed for a time Wednesday after a tractor-trailer rig jackknifed across the highway. Interstate 70 on Columbus' east side was also closed for a short time by accidents.

Several Cincinnati hotels reported they had brisk business Wednesday as some drivers decided to spend the night downtown rather than risk the trip home on glazed streets.

Low overnight temperatures hindered efforts to clear ice and snow from highways. effective if the temperature drops below 10 degrees.

The mercury started to fall Wednesday afternoon as a cold front moved south eastward across the state. Readings dropped in the teens over the state last night, and at 6 a.m. this morning, the cold spots were in northwestern Ohio where clear skies

ROUNDTOWN

THE West Union Street Hill will be barricaded for sled riders for as long as the snow and ice stay on the street it was announced today by Atwood Jones, Circleville service director. The Scioto-Union intersection will also be blocked to automobiles.

PICKAWAY County Alcoholic Program Coordinator Anna Ramey is now available to make referrals to the Regional Alcoholic Center in Columbus.

Any person wishing information or help with detoxification should call Ms. Ramey, 14:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at 474-6881.

MS. Selma Walker, representative of the Xenia Tecumseh Confederacy Manpower Program, is interested in contacting all people of Indian descent who reside in Pickaway County.

The major thrust of Ms. Walker's work consists of finding employment for the unemployed people of Indian descent. Anyone interested in contacting Ms. Walker should call Mike Melson or Carol Smallwood at 474-1303.

Weather

Partly cloudy and colder tonight, low near zero. Partly cloudy Friday, high in mid teens. Chance of snow 20 per cent tonight and Friday. Temperatures Wednesday were: high, 37; low, 12. Three inches of snow fell in Pickaway County.

gave six degrees at Findlay and four degrees at Toledo.

For today, readings will not get beyond the teens, along with variable cloudiness and scattered snow flurries mainly near Lake Erie.

Low for tonight are forecast between five above and five below zero.

Highs on Friday are expected to be only in teens again, but with fair skies, and with less wind for the chill factor.

Following the front is a high pressure over Nebraska today that is forecast to be moving eastward through Tennessee on Friday. This will keep arctic air and frigid temperatures through Friday, with slow moderation over the weekend.

Bone-chilling cold continued to hover over much of the northern half of the nation today as the Midwest dug out from up to six inches of snow and the upper South and Northeast dealt with sleet and freezing rain.

Hazardous driving conditions in the affected areas led to hundreds of accidents and at least four deaths.

Below zero temperatures were reported Wednesday in cities throughout Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and North and South Dakota.

Winds of more than 30 miles per hour blew the newly fallen snow in many areas into drifts two and three feet deep. Coupled with icy and snow-covered highways, travel was extremely hazardous in many sections of the Midwest.

"It hasn't been a serious snowfall," said Phil Shideler of the National Weather Service in Topeka, Kan. "The main problem has been blowing and drifting in the northeast" part of Kansas.

Scattered school closings were reported in the Kansas, Missouri North Carolina and Oklahoma.

Snow continued to fall in parts of Pennsylvania today, where two persons were killed in traffic accidents Wednesday on ice-slickened roads in the Philadelphia area.

State and local police reported dozens of traffic accidents.

The storm was expected to dump up to six inches of snow in western Pennsylvania and as much as a foot in the Northeast.

"It's a mess, a sheer sheet of ice. I couldn't tell you how many collisions we've had," said State Police Sgt. William Karvois, referring to the Schuylkill Expressway in Philadelphia.

Two other persons were killed Wednesday on icy roads in North Carolina.

Police in Washington, D.C., and suburban Maryland and Virginia reported 420 nonfatal traffic accidents on Wednesday during the morning rush hour as freezing rain created nasty driving conditions.

Freezing rain also covered most of Alabama on Wednesday, and driving conditions were hazardous.

The National Weather Service in North Dakota predicted temperatures today would hit 30 degrees below zero.

However, warmer temperatures were forecast for Friday, when the highs were expected to be around zero.

Police On Trail Of Band Of Auto-Stealing Youths

home Thursday morning and Sgt. Larry Barton (right) arrested two Columbus juveniles in connection with the case.

By DAVE AMEY

Arrests of three Columbus juveniles for the theft of a car from the city Thursday morning has pointed Circleville Police to Columbus and a band of youths they believe may be involved in a large-scale auto-stealing ring.

The trio has admitted, according to Sgt. Larry Pontious, to taking six cars from Circleville, one from Elsea Mobile Village, and 13 from Columbus within the past month. They would apparently drive the cars for several days and then abandon them.

Two of the juveniles, 13 and 14-years-old, were apprehended by Circleville Police Ptl. Ron Thompson 18 minutes after they took a car from a Town St. residence this morning.

And Ptl. Thompson and Sgt. Wes Barton arrested the 16-year-old youth several hours later in another stolen vehicle.

The incident began 7:32 a.m. today when Waylin Hamlin, 158 Town St., phoned Police Ptl. Ron Smith after his 1972 Ford Torino was stolen from in front of his house.

Hamlin told officers that he had left the car running to warm up.

Ptl. Thompson, patrolling in the area of W. Main St., pulled onto Route 23 and waited under the Island Rd. overpass to observe northbound traffic while Sgt. Barton investigated at the Town St. scene.

Barton, seeing that the tire tracks left by the stolen car headed towards Route 23, alerted Thompson.

Ptl. Thompson watched a car matching the description drive by his location headed north on Route 23. The officer trailed the car without siren or red light in an effort to read the license number. However, when he saw that the road conditions would keep him from catching up with the car, he activated the beacon on his cruiser and gave chase.

The chase abruptly ended when the juveniles lost control of the car and spun into the median strip just north of the County Road 511 intersection.

The youths were questioned at police headquarters after being booked for grand theft — auto and implicated the 16-year-old. They were apparently

President Reported Angered Over Disclosures About Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House suspects someone in Congress made public secret CIA testimony about undercover American money being given to some Italian anti-Communist politicians.

President Ford was described as angry about the public disclosure of the CIA funding, which CIA Director William E. Colby had described behind closed doors last month to some House and Senate members.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said there was "a strong suspicion in the White House that these allegations originated in Congress." Asked to be more specific, he replied, "I could but I won't."

The public disclosure that the CIA was funneling $6 million to the politicians came just hours before Italy's 32nd government since World War II collapsed, setting off a new crisis in the midst of a determined Communist drive for a share of political power there. However, there was no known link between the disclosure and the government's collapse.

Nessen declined to confirm or deny the CIA was paying the funds, but an authoritative source elsewhere confirmed the operation, which was initially disclosed in the Washington Post and the New York Times.

The $6 million was going directly to members of the Christian Democratic and Democratic Socialist parties in an attempt to head off what Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger considers alarming advances by Communists in Europe, according to the authoritative source.

Meanwhile, two of the lawmakers who had been confidentially briefed by Colby about the maneuvers were publicly critical of that policy.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, said he told Colby after the briefing, "I didn't think it was a very bright idea." Hays said he was concerned that the CIA would have no control over how the money was spent and that the "minute it becomes known" the net effect would be a gain for the Communists in Italy. Hays said he told Colby, "Whoever dreamed this up should have his head examined."

Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., who also was briefed on the CIA program, said the CIA declined to turn over the names of the individuals receiving the money. Instead, the committee was told it was simply being advised of the program, as required by law, and that President Ford had approved it, Ryan said.

Ryan said he and Hays "raised hell about it" but Colby gave no acknowledgment the congressmen could do anything about the funding.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., defended the payments, saying Italy and the United States have "ties of long standing," that "more than a billion dollars" in American money is invested in Italy and that U.S. Navy ships rely on Italian ports.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Year's rally in the stock market kept rolling today, with prices rising sharply in continued active trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.37 at 908.06, stretching the dramatic gain of the past week to more than 55 points. Gainers held a 2-1 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the upsurge was getting additional encouragement from a continued decline in interest rates. Those rates often exert a strong influence on the stock market because of their importance to corporate and individual spending plans—the cost of borrowing is a key element in the costs of living and of doing business.

Citicorp was the most active issue on the Big Board, off 1/4 at 31 1/2. A 120,000-share block traded at 31.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks picked up .37 to 50.12. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .33 to 88.41.

Ford's Campaign Officials Discount Drop In Popularity

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

President Ford's campaign officials say a poll showing a 7 per cent drop in Ford's popularity is a temporary setback resulting from voter apathy. But a spokesman for Ronald Reagan indicated he thought the figures mean the country is looking for leadership.

Ford, who has yet to make his first 1976 political trip, went by motorcade Wednesday from the White House to his campaign headquarters six blocks away. He met about 130 campaign workers and expressed continued confidence in his campaign manager, Howard H. Callaway.

But a short time later, a campaign spokesman said the Ford election committee had been told the results of a new Gallup poll showing a decline in Ford's popularity to 39 per cent, only two points above his all-time low Gallup rating.

As Ford was making his first visit to his own campaign headquarters, Reagan, his rival for the Republican presidential nomination, ended three days of campaigning in New Hampshire and flew to North Carolina.

A Ford aide said the campaign committee was "obviously concerned" about the poll but added, "As we get near the primary dates, support will harden and we think it will swing back to the President as his policies and programs become known. Such sizeable shifts of support for candidates are not surprising at this stage of the campaign."

In a statement, the Ford spokesman said polls made for Ford show "softness of support for all candidates because of voter apathy and a lack of information on any of the candidates and what they stand for."

But a spokesman for Reagan said, "We've known all along that the country has been looking for some leadership — somebody who would try to get Washington off their back. We've looked at this — the mood of the country (as reflected in polls) — and it doesn't change anything we're trying to do. It's a long way from here to the convention."

The Harris poll reported Wednesday that initial public reaction to the former California governor has been positive. Harris said a 45 to 25 per cent plurality believes Reagan "is no ordinary politician because he wants to cut federal spending and cut back the federal bureaucracy" and 44 to 25 per cent agreed with Reagan's hard-line stand toward Russia.

Ford, on his visit to his campaign headquarters in a Washington office building, defended Callaway, often the subject of criticism by Republicans who say his tactics have thrown the Ford campaign behind.

"I think we have a fine chairman of the President Ford Committee in Bo Callaway," Ford told the gathering in the campaign offices.

Meanwhile, Democratic candidate Sargent Shriver was in Boston, saying his first priority as president would be to "put Americans to work."

Shriver outlined an economic plan that he said would cut unemployment to less than 5 per cent while reducing inflation by mid-1978. He said his plan would also balance the federal budget within four years.

Among Shriver's proposals was a plan for $1.6 million for public service jobs and a stimulus to the private economy to create nearly 2 million more new jobs. He called for further tax reductions and tax credits for private employers.

Two noncandidates again stressed their noncandidacy on Wednesday.

A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Kennedy still has absolutely no plans to accept the Democratic nomination, although Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said he thought party leaders may be forced to draft him.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he would accept a draft, but does not plan to campaign in any primary. He said he considered the GOP race between Ford and Reagan to be a toss-up, although he said Reagan appeared to have the edge in New Hampshire and Florida.

Rehwinkel Society Names Speaker

DR. BERNARD S. SNYDER

Dr. Bernard S. Snyder of Columbus, president-elect of the Ohio Dental Assn., will speak at a meeting of the Rehwinkel Dental Society to be held Thursday at the Poland House in Chillicothe. The business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Doctor William Snyder of Chillicothe, president of the Rehwinkel Dental Society, will preside at the meeting. Dentists practicing in Highland, Fayette, Pickaway, Ross, Vinton, Jackson, Athens, Meigs and Gallia counties are members of the Society.

A graduate of The Ohio State University College of Dentistry Graduate School, Dr. Snyder is presently a senior partner of Snyder, Evans and Allison in the private practice of Oral and Maxillo-Facial Surgery in Columbus. He is the Assistant Professor and Director of Continuing Education for Oral Surgery and Anesthesia, The Ohio State University. Dr. Snyder's many honors include: a Fellow of the American College of Dentists, Diplomate of the American Board of Oral Surgery and member of the Pierre Fauchard Academy; past president of the Great Lakes Society of Oral Surgeons, Ohio Dental Society of Anesthesiology and the Columbus Dental Society.

Doctor Snyder has served on the state level as a delegate to the Ohio Dental Association House of Delegates and chairman of various committee. Currently, he is also a Delegate to the American Dental Association House of Delegates.

parked car at S. Scioto and Mill Sts. The car, a Ford Mustang Mach I, had been stolen from Columbus 4:30 a.m. Thursday.

Police are continuing their investigation into the auto thefts and working closely with the auto larceny squad of the Columbus Police Department.

Two cars stolen earlier in the week from Circleville residents were recovered Wednesday and a third is being sought by Columbus police after it was involved in a hit-skip accident.

Police Ptl. Howard Fletcher recovered the Ford Torino owned by Kathy Salyers, 810 S. Washington St., 5:49 p.m. at the East End Market. The car was abandoned.

Ms. Salyers reported that the vehicle was stolen from in front of her house between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 5:43 a.m. Wednesday.

A 1969 Ford LTD owned by Douglas Moore, Morris Trailer Court, was recovered 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the northeastern part of Columbus, according to Sgt. Pontious.

The car was taken from in front of Eshleman's Mill Monday.

Columbus Police say that a 1974 Plymouth owned by Michael Hettinger, 431 S. Pickaway St., was involved in a hit-skip accident in Columbus 2:50 p.m. Thursday.

The car was stolen from in front of Hettinger's home 10:02 a.m. Wednesday.

The car has not been recovered, Columbus Police said.

In other police investigations, Andrew Case, 1154 1/2 Long St., Ashville, reported that thieves took $50 in cash and $183 in food stamps from his wife's pocketbook while they were shopping at the Kroger Store Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Case apparently left her pocketbook in their car. When she returned, the contents had been dumped on the front floorboard.

Offered Position

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — President Ford's son, Steven, 19, has been guaranteed a job on a Kentucky horse farm, if he ever wants one.

The Thoroughbred Breeders of Kentucky offered the President's son the job after reading that he had transferred from Utah State University to California State Polytechnic University to take courses in horseshoeing and riding.

Paris Executive Found Safe; Police Search For Kidnapers

PARIS (AP) — A telephone number found in the trouser cuff of a suspect led police to kidnaped record company chief Louis Hazan Wednesday night, and today the police were hunting for six of his kidnapers.

The telephone number was that of a walled house in Trembley les Villages, a small town 70 miles west of Paris. Inside, police found Hazan chained and gagged in a cupboard but unhurt after a week in captivity.

The police said five other members of the kidnap gang, including the leader and his brother, had been arrested, and none of the $3.4 million ransom demanded had been paid.

Hazan, 54-year-old chief executive of Phonogram, France's largest producer of phonograph records, was kidnaped from a company board meeting Dec. 31 by six men posing as musicians. They took him out in a large wicker basket.

The break in the case came Tuesday night when police seized two brothers in their 30s, with minor criminal records, who came to a ransom rendezvous at the Place de la Bastille in central Paris.

A third member of the gang was seized Wednesday morning. It was in his cuff that the vital phone number was discovered. As the police entered the house after scaling the wall, three men guarding the kidnaped man fled. Hazan was "very shaken but unhurt," the police reported. They said he had been brought to the house a short time before.

Hazan told newsmen he had been kept in the dark all the time, with a hood over his face and his eyes taped.

He said he was "very well treated," fed regularly, taken twice daily to the toilet and given medicine for his stomach ailment.

The alleged leader of the gang was arrested Wednesday night at his parents' apartment in a middle-class housing development near Versailles. He was identified as Hugo Brunini, 35, a French-Italian and director of an office-cleaning company engaged by Phonogram.

With kidnaping and ransom demands in France threatening to emulate the escalating spiral that has hit Italy, the Interior Ministry announced Tuesday night that the police had been ordered to oppose the payment of ransom and to use "all necessary means" to apprehend kidnapers.

Archer ... Stebbins To Fight Dismissal

The soil and water conservation district also serves on the subdivision development board of review as a means of assuring that housing developments are compatible with the agriculture community. According to Archer, one of the big problems with subdivision developments is the interruption of existing drainage systems. Tile lines are sometimes cut by a builder during the construction of a home and frequently these lines are not restored.

The office also has assisted with the flood hazard study of Hargus-Hominy Creek Watershed and with the design of the irrigating waste disposal system at Deer Creek State Park. The office had a hand in planning 1,800 acres of wildlife habitat at Deer Creek.

Twenty-five years ago most farmers in Pickaway County managed their crop land with a rotation of corn, wheat and meadow. Today, the management practices emphasize continual row crops and the small grains such as wheat and oats play less of a role in the economy of the agriculture community.

The average corn yield 25 years ago according to Archer was about 55 bushels per acre in Pickaway County. Now the average is 90 bushels per acre and with the technology available to farmers, they should not be satisfied with a yield of less than 150 bushels per acre he says.

Twenty-five years ago a yield of two tons dry matter per acre on meadow was considered excellent. Today yields of five to six tons are not unusual when proper management and fertilization are put to use.

Soybean yields have tripled over the years and have become a major crop to county farmers. Twenty-five years ago yields averaged about 20 bushels per acre and few farmers bothered to grow them. Today yields should be about 60 bushels per acre if proper management is followed.

The proper use of nitrogen as a plant food tool has been the key to increased yields along with the modern technology now available.

During his career with the soil conservation service and his early years on the Noble County farm, Archer has seen the demise of the horse as the source of power for the farmer, replaced by ever-increasingly larger tractors. He has seen yields triple and the size of the farm unit increase by five to 10 times. Even in his own work, the slide rule has been replaced by the electronic calculator.

What's in the future?

"We will see more demand for high food production. We must begin now reserving the good land for agriculture use. We can not allow it to be covered up with housing developments, industry or roads," Archer says.

To meet this demand, farmers will have to utilize every land management tool available.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The ousted chairman of the Ohio Industrial Commission has indicated he will fight his removal from office by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Gregory J. Stebbins, who was dismissed Wednesday by the governor, said, "I intend to waive none of my rights with respect to the holding of the office which I occupy." He has seven days to file a formal appeal.

In announcing his decision, Rhodes accused Stebbins of "inefficiency in office, neglect of duty, misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance." The three-member commission oversees the state's workmen's compensation benefit program.

"I have reviewed the order," Stebbins said, "and while some of the contents of it are vague and non-specific, I am confident that they represent no wrongdoing whatsoever on my part."

"I have always given my best efforts to the people of the State of Ohio as a member of the Industrial Commission, and I am quite sure that there is no cause for my removal," he said.

Rhodes said his office had conducted an investigation of Stebbins based on questions raised in newspaper reports and at legislative hearings and "statements from private citizens."

The accusations range from a questionable personal real estate transaction to alleged approval of disability claims on behalf of dead persons.

Stebbins, a Democrat and former Ohio AFL-CIO official, was appointed to the industrial commission in 1972 by former Gov. John J. Gilligan. His term was to have expired in August 1977.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Year's rally in the stock market kept rolling today, with prices rising sharply in continued active trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.37 at 908.06, stretching the dramatic gain of the past week to more than 55 points. Gainers held a 2-1 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the upsurge was getting additional encouragement from a continued decline in interest rates. Those rates often exert a strong influence on the stock market because of their importance to corporate and individual spending plans—the cost of borrowing is a key element in the costs of living and of doing business.

Citicorp was the most active issue on the Big Board, off 1/4 at 31 1/2. A 120,000-share block traded at 31.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks picked up .37 to 50.12. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .33 to 88.41.

The car was taken from in front of Eshleman's Mill Monday.

Columbus Police say that a 1974 Plymouth owned by Michael Hettinger, 431 S. Pickaway St., was involved in a hit-skip accident in Columbus 2:50 p.m. Thursday.

The car was stolen from in front of Hettinger's home 10:02 a.m. Wednesday.

The car has not been recovered, Columbus Police said.

In other police investigations, Andrew Case, 11543 1/2 Long St., Ashville, reported that thieves took $50 in cash and $183 in food stamps from his wife's pocketbook while they were shopping at the Kroger Store Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Case apparently left her pocketbook in their car. When she returned, the contents had been dumped on the front floorboard.

Offered Position

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — President Ford's son, Steven, 19, has been guaranteed a job on a Kentucky horse farm, if he ever wants one.

The Thoroughbred Breeders of Kentucky offered the President's son the job after reading that he had transferred from Utah State University to California State Polytechnic University to take courses in horseshoeing and riding.

former California governor has been positive. Harris said a 45 to 25 per cent plurality believes Reagan "is no ordinary politician because he wants to cut federal spending and cut back the federal bureaucracy" and 44 to 25 per cent agreed with Reagan's hard-line stand toward Russia.

Ford, on his visit to his campaign headquarters in a Washington office building, defended Callaway, often the subject of criticism by Republicans who say his tactics have thrown the Ford campaign behind.

"I think we have a fine chairman of the President Ford Committee in Bo Callaway," Ford told the gathering in the campaign offices.

Meanwhile, Democratic candidate Sargent Shriver was in Boston, saying his first priority as president would be to "put Americans to work."

Shriver outlined an economic plan that he said would cut unemployment to less than 5 per cent while reducing inflation by mid-1978. He said his plan would also balance the federal budget within four years.

Among Shriver's proposals was a plan for $1.6 million for public service jobs and a stimulus to the private economy to create nearly 2 million more new jobs. He called for further tax reductions and tax credits for private employers.

Two noncandidates again stressed their noncandidacy on Wednesday.

A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Kennedy still has absolutely no plans to accept the Democratic nomination, although Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said he thought party leaders may be forced to draft him.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he would accept a draft, but does not plan to campaign in any primary. He said he considered the GOP race between Ford and Reagan to be a toss-up, although he said Reagan appeared to have the edge in New Hampshire and Florida.

Rehwinkel Society Names Speaker

Dr. Bernard S. Snyder of Columbus, president-elect of the Ohio Dental Assn., will speak at a meeting of the Rehwinkel Dental Society to be held Thursday at the Poland House in Chillicothe. The business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Doctor William Snyder of Chillicothe, president of the Rehwinkel Dental Society, will preside at the meeting. Dentists practicing in Highland, Fayette, Pickaway, Ross, Vinton, Jackson, Athens, Meigs and Gallia counties are members of the Society.

A graduate of The Ohio State University College of Dentistry Graduate School, Dr. Snyder is presently a senior partner of Snyder, Evans and Allison in the private practice of Oral and Maxillo-Facial Surgery in Columbus. He is the Assistant Professor and Director of Continuing Education for Oral Surgery and Anesthesia, The Ohio State University. Dr. Snyder's many honors include: a Fellow of the American College of Dentists, Diplomate of the American Board of Oral Surgery and member of the Pierre Fauchard Academy; past president of the Great Lakes Society of Oral Surgeons, Ohio Dental Society of Anesthesiology and the Columbus Dental Society.

Doctor Snyder has served on the state level as a delegate to the Ohio Dental Association House of Delegates and chairman of various committees. Currently, he is also a Delegate to the American Dental Association House of Delegates.

Paris Executive Found Safe; Police Search For Kidnapers

PARIS (AP) — A telephone number found in the trouser cuff of a suspect led police to kidnaped record company chief Louis Hazan Wednesday night, and today the police were hunting for six of his kidnapers.

The telephone number was that of a walled house in Trembley les Villages, a small town 70 miles west of Paris. Inside, police found Hazan chained and gagged in a cupboard but unhurt after a week in captivity.

The police said five other members of the kidnap gang, including the leader and his brother, had been arrested, and none of the $3.4 million ransom demanded had been paid.

Hazan, 54-year-old chief executive of Phonogram, France's largest producer of phonograph records, was kidnaped from a company board meeting Dec. 31 by six men posing as musicians. They took him out in a large wicker basket.

The break in the case came Tuesday night when police seized two brothers in their 30s, with minor criminal records, who came to a ransom rendezvous at the Place de la Bastille in central Paris.

A third member of the gang was seized Wednesday morning. It was in his cuff that the vital phone number was discovered. As the police entered the house after scaling the wall, three men guarding the kidnaped man fled. Hazan was "very shaken but unhurt," the police reported. They said he had been brought to the house a short time before.

Hazan told newsmen he had been kept in the dark all the time, with a hood over his face and his eyes taped.

He said he was "very well treated," fed regularly, taken twice daily to the toilet and given medicine for his stomach ailment.

The alleged leader of the gang was arrested Wednesday night at his parents' apartment in a middle-class housing development near Versailles. He was identified as Hugo Brunini, 35, a French-Italian and director of an office-cleaning company engaged by Phonogram.

With kidnaping and ransom demands in France threatening to emulate the escalating spiral that has hit Italy, the Interior Ministry announced Tuesday night that the police had been ordered to oppose the payment of ransom and to use "all necessary means" to apprehend kidnapers.

Archer . . .

bare soil never becomes exposed to the elements.

The soil and water conservation district also serves on the subdivision development board of review as a means of assuring that housing developments are compatible with the agriculture community. According to Archer, one of the big problems with subdivision developments is the interruption of existing drainage systems. Tile lines are sometimes cut by a builder during the construction of a home and frequently these lines are not restored.

The office also has assisted with the flood hazard study of Hargus-Hominy Creek Watershed and with the design of the irrigating waste disposal system at Deer Creek State Park. The office had a hand in planning 1,800 acres of wildlife habitat at Deer Creek.

Twenty-five years ago most farmers in Pickaway County managed their crop land with a rotation of corn, wheat and meadow. Today, the management practices emphasize continual row crops and the small grains such as wheat and oats play less of a role in the economy of the agriculture community.

The average corn yield 25 years ago according to Archer was about 55 bushels per acre in Pickaway County. Now the average is 90 bushels per acre and with the technology available to farmers, they should not be satisfied with a yield of less than 150 bushels per acre he says.

Twenty-five years ago a yield of two tons dry matter per acre on meadow was considered excellent. Today yields of five to six tons are not unusual when proper management and fertilization are put to use.

Soybean yields have tripled over the years and have become a major crop to county farmers. Twenty-five years ago yields averaged about 20 bushels per acre and few farmers bothered to grow them. Today yields should be about 60 bushels per acre if proper management is followed.

The proper use of nitrogen as a plant food tool has been the key to increased yields along with the modern technology now available.

During his career with the soil conservation service and his early years on the Noble County farm, Archer has seen the demise of the horse as the source of power for the farmer, replaced by ever-increasingly larger tractors. He has seen yields triple and the size of the farm unit increase by five to 10 times. Even in his own work, the slide rule has been replaced by the electronic calculator.

What's in the future? "We will see more demand for high food production. We must begin now reserving the good land for agriculture use. We can not allow it to be covered up with housing developments, industry or roads," Archer says.

To meet this demand, farmers will have to utilize every land management tool available.

Stebbins To Fight Dismissal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The ousted chairman of the Ohio Industrial Commission has indicated he will fight his removal from office by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Gregory J. Stebbins, who was dismissed Wednesday by the governor, said, "I intend to waive none of my rights with respect to the holding of the office which I occupy. I have seven days to file a formal appeal."

In announcing his decision, Rhodes accused Stebbins of "inefficiency in office, neglect of duty, misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance." The three-member commission oversees the state's workmen's compensation benefit program.

"I have reviewed the order," Stebbins said, "and while some of the contents of it are vague and non-specific, I am confident that they represent no wrongdoing whatsoever on my part."

"I have always given my best efforts to the people of the State of Ohio as a member of the Industrial Commission, and I am quite sure that there is no cause for my removal," he said.

Rhodes said his office had conducted an investigation of Stebbins based on questions raised in newspaper reports and at legislative hearings and "statements from private citizens."

The accusations range from a questionable personal real estate transaction to alleged approval of disability claims on behalf of dead persons.

Stebbins, a Democrat and former Ohio AFL-CIO official, was appointed to the industrial commission in 1972 by former Gov. John J. Gilligan. His term was to have expired in August 1977.

Division In The Courts

The decision by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in removing U.S. District Court Judge Miles W. Lord from the Reserve Mining Company case was regrettable but wise.

The move was regrettable because it was necessary and because a new jurist will not have the background knowledge of the case that Judge Lord did.

But regardless of that fact, the move was needed. Judge Lord apparently got too close to the forest to see the trees.

His later rulings disclosed partiality in the lawsuit started to force an end to dumping of taconite tailings into Lake Superior.

Although declaiming that his actions were taken to protect the public from environmental harm, the judge's action betrayed the principle of impartiality that is a must if the nation's judiciary system is to function.

Undies Your Undoing

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — In my youth, mothers went to great lengths to assure that their daughters were well groomed and clean.

"Always wear nice underwear," they would warn, "because suppose you are in an accident and have to go to the hospital. Think how embarrassed you'd be if your slip is dirty."

This "clean-lingerie syndrome" was similar, in its well-intentioned pretension, to the "tidy-room trauma": "Keep your room neat because, if a burglar comes in, what would he think?"

An awesome thought. Almost as worrisome as visualizing the Armenians starving if we didn't finish the peas and carrots.

However, girls who were brought up without the clean-lingerie threat, implying loss of status among hospital attendants, may now be finding themselves in an embarrassing position. It recently was revealed that there is sneaky spying on the dressing rooms in at least one major New York department store . . . so heaven knows how many careless women have been observed changing clothes, never realizing that prying eyes were overlooking their yellowing bras or the splits and runs in their panty hose!

It is something to think about when you go shopping, isn't it? What will the store detectives think of my undies?

Most women I know were outraged, more than mortified, when the news came out that dressing-room spies were stalked out in a store (Gimbel's). When the practice was uncovered, Criminal Court Judge Leo Milonas ruled it unconstitutional.

Judge Milonas not only condemned the store for spying, he also dismissed the store's charges against two customers who had allegedly been seen shoplifting during their dressing room show-and-tell.

The justice ruled that the department store had acted illegally in permitting a woman security officer to perch on a hidden scaffold peering into the dressing room through a grated air vent to observe women changing.

A security officer at the establishment was horrified by this legal decision, and said: "We are trying to survive. Take away surveillance in dressing rooms, and we are at the mercy of criminals."

The judge remained firm, however, stating that the Fourth Amendment affords individuals "a reasonable expectation of privacy." To keep one shoplifter honest, it is not necessary or legal to spy on many shoppers. "The function of a fitting room is, after all, to provide a place where a customer can try on items of clothing in private, undisturbed from the observation of others," he concluded.

Milonas did not go so far as to ban the spying practice in the store in question, or in any other store. So presumably, the heretofore unsuspected surveillance of undressing shoppers could continue.

There are two possible solutions, for the shopper:

Decline to try on clothes in the store, if you see eyes behind the scaffolding, and take them home on approval for private modeling. The flood of paperwork involved, when you return those which don't fit, should discourage spying.

Or do as Mother says, and strip to your clean underwear with pride . . .

"MD," a medical magazine (you guessed?) came out with the theory that a person's psychological quirks can be assessed by his food preferences - and aversions:

Sweets-craving adults probably feel unloved, and are trying to recapture a past when ice cream and candy were

NEW YORK (AP) — Although there were more than 4,400 work stoppages in 1975, authorities on collective bargaining consider labor-management communications in 1975 to have been relatively smooth.

This year might produce a different record. The Conference Board assembled a panel on the subject, and after their deliberations they announced: "Members unanimously foresee an increased number of strikes in 1976."

The main reason for the somber forecast is that more contracts will expire in 1976 than in 1975, and thus, said the panel members, there will be more "opportunity" to strike.

True, but strikes don't occur simply because the opportunity is there. An opportunity to strike is unlikely to be exercised if nothing is to be gained or regained, and it appears that in 1976 both factors are involved.

Workers throughout the country are aware to the nickel of how much inflation has taken from their paychecks, and they seem intent on getting that money back, and more.

Studies by other organizations have demonstrated how prevalent is the feeling that inflation won't be conquered in 1976, and the panel members agree. They expect a rise in consumer prices of 7 per cent to 8 per cent.

Indiana Women Nab Robber, Foil Escape By 2nd Man

AMBOY, Ind. (AP) — Two sisters who foiled a bank robbery in this tiny northern Indiana railroad community of 476 are heroines to their children, but their husbands wish they'd leave cops-and-robbers to someone else.

"My husband is a little unhappy because I had my 2-year-old son with me," Rebecca Griggs, 28, said. "But my daughters are jumping up and down, saying their mommy caught a bank robber."

Mrs. Griggs used her belt to tie up a suspected bandit Tuesday after her sister, Shirley "Casey" Bowland, 27, disabled the getaway car. A second suspect was caught a short time later as he missed jumping on the caboose of a moving freight train.

Mrs. Bowland said she and her sister were waiting at the drive-up window of the Farmers National Bank branch Tuesday afternoon when they saw a car with its engine running parked across the street.

"Becky said, 'Do you think they're robbing the bank?' You know, just as a joke," Mrs. Bowland said after the incident.

She said the bank's manager, Herman Agness, 64, then ran out of the bank, told them the bank was being robbed and asked them to go for help.

"I turned their car off and started letting air out of their tires," she said. "I was there when they came out of the bank and I beelined it for the restaurant — I didn't know if they had a gun."

Mrs. Bowland said she jumped back in the car with her sister and they took off after the suspects who fled on foot after they found their car disabled.

Agness said he watched the women round a building from one direction and Ehrhardt Ballschmidt, 32, owner of the community's lone supermarket, come from the other.

"Ehrhardt fired one shot, then the robber threw up his hands and said 'I give up,'" Mrs. Bowland said. "We told him to lay on the ground and spread 'em. Becky took off her belt and we tied his hands."

"I'll be damned if one of those girls didn't have a foot on the guy," Agness said. "Then they marched him up town in front of their car and waited for the state police."

Just to make sure the men didn't find another car key and get away, Agness shot out a tire on the car, Mrs. Boland said.

Held in the Miami County jail in Peru were Clarence Bailey, 27, and his brother Alvin, 23, both of Gary. Alvin was delivered by the women, police said.

Agness said the holdup men were armed with a sawed-off shotgun and herded all the employees and customers into the vault — but they didn't see him because he was in the back of the building.

He wouldn't say how much money was taken but that every dime of it was found on the railroad tracks.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been told that I have a breast cancer. I heard somewhere that treatment with X-ray is just as curative as removal of the breast. What do you think?

Mrs. J. W., Ohio

Dear Mrs. W.: Since urgency of treatment is so important in such cases I have already answered this letter directly to you so that no time would be wasted.

In addition, I would like my readers, too, to know that many women are confused by the advantages of surgery as against X-ray treatment for cancers of the breast.

It is reasonable to assume that surgery would not be the "preferred" course of action by the patient.

Many women would even subject themselves to risks rather than have the disfiguring operation for the removal of the breast.

It should be understood that there are many kinds of tumors in different parts of the breast that affect the judgment of the doctor and the surgeon. The age group of the patient, and the ability of the patient to withstand massive breast surgery are taken into consideration in the process known as "surgical judgment."

Patients themselves must not, and dare not, risk their lives on their own emotional reaction to their disease. The doctor, the surgeon and the radiologist are the only ones who can coordinate their years of experience and arrive at individual treatment for each case.

Surgery in many instances is actually the most conservative approach to such a serious problem. Total mastectomy, partial mastectomy, post-operative X-ray treatment and anti-cancer drugs are highly complex factors to be considered in the life-saving process of breast cancer surgery.

The emotions of the patient are certainly taken into consideration. But doctors cannot be pressured into straying from their medical judgment by bending to the understandable emotional upheaval of their patients.

I have numbness and tingling of the fingers of my right hand. My doctor calls it "tunnel disease." No one I speak to has ever heard of this.

Mr. S. L., Minn.

Dear Mr. L.:

Your doctor is astute. A condition known as the "carpal tunnel syndrome" is a relatively rare condition that is responsible for the symptoms you describe.

The median nerve passes through a rigid "tunnel" in the wrist. Sometimes, by injury or inflammation, this median nerve becomes compressed in the narrow tunnel. The result is a "pins and needles" sensation, numbness, swelling and an impaired movement of some of the fingers.

Simple surgery can cure this condition, if drugs and cortisone have been ineffective.

Jamaica, Guyana May Back Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources predict two more Western Hemisphere countries will soon come out in support of the Soviet-backed faction in the Angola civil war.

Intelligence sources said they have received strong indications that the governments of Jamaica in the Caribbean and Guyana in South America will formally recognize the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), an action already taken by Brazil.

These sources forecast that such action will follow expected recognition of the MPLA by the Organization of African Unity (OAU), which convenes later this week in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

U.S. intelligence sources also have been watching the movement of a Soviet guided-missile destroyer down the west coast of Africa in recent days for any indications it may sail toward Angola. At last report, the destroyer was steaming west of Guinea.

The Russians have stationed an amphibious tank-landing ship some 300 miles off the northern Angolan coast for some time in what is regarded by some U.S. analysts as a further demonstration of Soviet interest in that area of Africa and its adjoining waters.

The Soviets have moved destroyers and tank-landing ships in and out of Conakry, Guinea, for several years. Analysts say that even if the destroyer meets with the tank-landing ship at sea off Angola, it would be more a symbolic, show-the-flag gesture than a significant military show of force, considering the relatively small naval power involved.

On the diplomatic front, sources said a three-man MPLA delegation recently visited both Jamaica and Guyana and received assurances of at least moral support from leaders of both countries.

There are reports that Guyana may demonstrate its support for the MPLA by sending a small medical team to Angola.

More significantly, recognition of the MPLA could be followed by open use of Guyana's facilities for refueling Cuban airplanes lifting troops to Angola. This would amount to defiance of the United States.

If, as U.S. intelligence expects, Guyana formally backs the MPLA, it would be somewhat ironic because Guyana's present prime minister, Forbes Burnham, was installed in 1964 with substantial help from the CIA.

The CIA was concerned at the time over control of the Guyana government by Marxist Cheddi Jagan.

As for recent fighting in Angola, U.S. intelligence sources said the MPLA may have taken Negage, described as a key stronghold in northern Angola, from U.S.-supported troops.

Reports reaching Washington said Soviet-built T34 tanks were used in the attack on Negage, a possible indication that Cuban troops are engaged. Sources said last week that there were signs a tank unit of the regular Cuban army had entered the war.

U.S. intelligence reports tended to support South African press accounts of a new MPLA offensive, with the apparent loss of the important northern Angolan town of Carmona by the U.S.-backed National Front (FNLA).

Seek Plant For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President Ford was asked today by Gov. James A. Rhodes to assist in bringing a proposed federal uranium enrichment plant to the Portsmouth area.

Rhodes met with business leaders from the southern Ohio community Tuesday and then wrote Ford, citing advantages of the Portsmouth area.

Doltham, Ala., and Portsmouth, which has a uranium enrichment plant, are being considered as sites for the multibillion dollar facility.

"This plant will mean thousands of construction jobs and an additional 1,500 permanent jobs in an area where they are needed," Rhodes wrote.

"Every bit of logic argues that this plant should be located in Ohio, a position concurred in by the independent federal General Accounting Office which analyzed both sites."

"The state will devote its full efforts in the attempt to bring this facility, which manufactures fuel for atomic installations, to the Portsmouth area," Rhodes said.

Unemployment in Scioto County where Portsmouth is located was 15.1 percent at the beginning of December and neighboring Adams County was 15.8 per cent of the work force.

Rhodes said land for the facility is available and owned by the federal government.

Division In The Courts

The decision by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in removing U.S. District Court Judge Miles W. Lord from the Reserve Mining Company case was regrettable but wise.

The move was regrettable because it was necessary and because a new jurist will not have the background knowledge of the case that Judge Lord did.

But regardless of that fact, the move was needed. Judge Lord apparently got too close to the forest to see the trees.

His later rulings disclosed partiality in the lawsuit started to force an end to dumping of taconite tailings into Lake Superior.

Although declaiming that his actions were taken to protect the public from environmental harm, the judge's action betrayed the principle of impartiality that is a must if the nation's judiciary system is to function.

Undies Your Undoing

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — In my youth, mothers went to great lengths to assure that their daughters were well groomed and clean.

"Always wear nice underwear," they would warn, "because suppose you are in an accident and have to go to the hospital. Think how embarrassed you'd be if your slip is dirty."

This "clean-lingerie syndrome" was similar, in its well-intentioned pretension, to the "tidy-room trauma": "Keep your room neat because, if a burglar comes in, what would he think?"

An awesome thought. Almost as worrisome as visualizing the Armenians starving if we didn't finish the peas and carrots.

However, girls who were brought up without the clean-lingerie threat, implying loss of status among hospital attendants, may now be finding themselves in an embarrassing position. It recently was revealed that there is sneaky spying on the dressing rooms in at least one major New York department store . . . so heaven knows how many careless women have been observed changing clothes, never realizing that prying eyes were overlooking their yellowing bras or the splits and runs in their panty hose!

It is something to think about when you go shopping, isn't it? What will the store detectives think of my undies?

Most women I know were undies, more than mortified, when the news came out that dressing-room spies were stalked out in a store (Gimbel's). When the practice was uncovered, Criminal Court Judge Leo Milonas ruled it unconstitutional.

Judge Milonas not only condemned the store for spying, he also dismissed the store's charges against two customers who had allegedly been seen shoplifting during their dressing room show-and-tell.

The justice ruled that the department store had acted illegally in permitting a woman security officer to perch on a hidden scaffold peering into the dressing room through a grated air vent to observe women changing.

A security officer at the establishment was horrified by this legal decision, and said: "We are trying to survive. Take away surveillance in dressing rooms, and we are at the mercy of criminals."

The judge remained firm, however, stating that the Fourth Amendment affords individuals "a reasonable expectation of privacy." To keep one shoplifter honest, it is not necessary or legal to spy on many shoppers. "The function of a fitting room is, after all, to provide a place where a customer can try on items of clothing in private, undisturbed from the observation of others," he concluded.

Milonas did not go so far as to ban the spying practice in the store in question, or in any other store. So presumably, the heretofore unsuspected surveillance of undressing shoppers could continue.

There are two possible solutions, for the shopper:

Decline to try on clothes in the store, if you see eyes behind the scaffolding, and take them home on approval for private modeling. The flood of paperwork involved, when you return those which don't fit, should discourage spying.

Or do as Mother says, and stride to your clean underwear with pride . . .

"MD," a medical magazine (you guessed?) came out with the theory that a person's psychological quirks can be assessed by his food preferences - and aversions:

Sweets-craving adults probably feel unloved, and are trying to recapture a past when ice cream and candy were the rewards for good behavior. Like midnight snacks? A sign of infinite insecurity, with a turning to food for reassurance and even companionship. An aversion to shelled food denotes a psychological clinging to childhood when everything seemed easier to handle. Finally: the more adventurous a person's food tastes, the more well balanced his personality.

The author of this article preferred to remain anonymous . . . Showing (along with people who won't try snails) a streak of cowardice.

Wife Can't Sue For Damages

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A wife cannot sue for damages for injuries sustained by her husband prior to their marriage, a Butler County Common Pleas Court judge has ruled.

Judge Fred B. Cramer said there is no record of such a case on the books in Ohio. He eliminated the $15,000 loss-of-services claim made Celeste Pharis, Seven Mile, Ohio, in a suit filed with her husband, James.

The husband's claim for $35,000 against two fellow construction workers was continued. He charged Robert Callahan and Roy Chambers, Okeana, Ohio, were negligent in building a scaffolding in December 1972. Pharis said he suffered back injuries when it fell two months before the wedding.

Cramer said the court can not permit a person to "marry into a cause of action."

Charter Members Honored At Holiday Open House In Historical Society Museum

Over 200 guests attended the holiday open house at Pickaway County Historical Society Museum. A Christmas tree with old-fashioned ornaments made by fifth grade students throughout the county and city greeted guests as they entered the meeting room. Surrounding the tree were toys received by children many years ago. Hosts attired in suits and dresses of a by-gone era were in each of the rooms to welcome visitors and answer questions.

Honored were six of the elder charter members of the society: Mrs. Walter Kindler, Mr. R. R. Bales, Mrs. Leslie May, Mrs. Ralph May, George McDowell and Paul Johnson.

Rex Haecker spoke in behalf of the society in honoring these charter members. Excerpts from his talk entitled "These We Honor" follow: "This is a wonderful day in the life of Pickaway County Historical Society. It is a day when we honor those charter members who have given so generously of their support, not only during the early and difficult days when the society was in its budding stage, but also during the subsequent years.

"The charter members we honor are among those stalwarts in our organization who believed that the doings of our forebearers were of such importance that their accomplishments during the many years of Pickaway County's life should be preserved as a sound foundation for guiding the lives of our youth of today and tomorrow.

"Looking back over the years since the original charter members banded together in an organization, the society has been able to accomplish many things. In some areas the accomplishments were not as great as anticipated, but in other areas it was possible to bring into being those things which have added a luster to the "Classic Garden Spot" known as Pickaway County.

"It has been possible to record many past events of our county history in the 'Pickaway Quarterly' thus making a permanent record of the events of years gone by. It has been possible to inculcate in the younger members of the society a greater awareness of the events of the past for the purpose of imbuing them with the responsibility of carrying forward to future generations those things of the past which have been the foundation of the present.

"We who live in Pickaway County have been blessed with the privilege of being able to call this our home. As we count these blessings we begin to understand the fortitude of those we honor today, those who were an integral part of an organization dedicated to keeping alive the traditions and events of the past. It took foresight, vision and a love of Pickaway County to steadfastly work together and support the effort to create an effective historical society dedicated to the greatness of Pickaway County. For this effort we and many generations to come will have just cause to express appreciation.

"Today we honor those charter members of the society who have done their part in carrying forward this work. On behalf of Pickaway County Historical Society it is my pleasure to express to each of you appreciation for your support."

Following Mr. Haecker's talk "This I Remember" discussion was held in which the charter members recalled some things which happened during past years. They included a day's outing by canal boat, the ice wagon, traction rides to Columbus, the fire alarm boxes, when the circus came to town, etc.

NEIGHBORHOOD SUPPER
Chinese Pork Pie, Mixed Greens, Salad Bowl, Ginger Ice, Fortune Cookies.

CHINESE PORK PIE
We've revived this recipe from the 1960s because it's usually popular.
2 pounds ground pork
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
20-ounce can crushed pineapple, undrained

1/4 cup cider vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour

Pastry for a 2-crust 10-inch pie
In a large skillet brown pork and onion, drain off excess drippings. Stir in the remaining ingredients for filling except green pepper and flour; simmer until no liquid is visible — 30 minutes; stir in green pepper and flour. Turn into pastry-lined 10-inch pie plate; adjust top crust and make numerous vents; trim, flute and seal edge. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until lightly browned — 25 to 35 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

BUTTERED SNAP BEANS
2 quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
1 pound snap beans, tipped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a 3-quart covered saucepot bring the water and salt to a boil. Meanwhile with a vegetable brush scrub beans under cold running water. Add to boiling water. Cover tightly and bring again to a boil. Place cover slightly ajar and boil until beans are tender — usually 4 to 6 minutes. Drain at once, using saucepot cover to do so. Add butter and place over very low heat, tossing until butter melts. Taste and add more salt if desired. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings. (This cooking method entails a loss of nutrients but the beans taste so delicious and keep their green color so well, that many cooks are satisfied to make up the nutrient loss by way of other foods.)

DIET DINNER
Fish fillets, zucchini, carrot-celery slaw, special caramel custard.
Special Caramel Custard

Sugar
1/2 cup refrigerated cholesterol-free egg substitute, from a 16-ounce carton
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups skim milk

Over very low heat, stirring often, melt 1/2 cup sugar until a light amber color; at once spoon 2 tablespoons into each of four 6-ounce custard cups, coating sides and bottoms. Place cups in a shallow baking pan. Gently beat together the egg substitute, 1/4 cup sugar, the vanilla and milk; pour into custard cups. Add enough hot water to baking pan to come up 1 inch. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a knife tip inserted in center comes out clean — 45 to 50 minutes. Cool cups on wire rack. Chill. At serving time, loosen edges and turn out. Makes 4 servings.

CHINESE PORK PIE
We've revived this recipe from the 1960s because it's usually popular.
2 pounds ground pork
1½ cups chopped onion
20-ounce can crushed pineapple, undrained
¼ cup cider vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour

Pastry for a 2-crust 10-inch pie
In a large skillet brown pork and onion, drain off excess drippings. Stir in the remaining ingredients for filling except green pepper and flour; simmer until no liquid is visible — 30 minutes; stir in green pepper and flour. Turn into pastry-lined 10-inch pie plate; adjust top crust and make numerous vents; trim, flute and seal edge. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until lightly browned — 25 to 35 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

BUTTERED SNAP BEANS

2 quarts water
1 tablespoon salt
1 pound snap beans, tipped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a 3-quart covered saucepot bring the water and salt to a boil. Meanwhile with a vegetable brush scrub beans under cold running water. Add to boiling water. Cover tightly and bring again to a boil. Place cover slightly ajar and boil until beans are tender — usually 4 to 6 minutes. Drain at once, using saucepot cover to do so. Add butter and place over very low heat, tossing until butter melts. Taste and add more salt if desired. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings. (This cooking method entails a loss of nutrients but the beans taste so delicious and keep their green color so well, that many cooks are satisfied to make up the nutrient loss by way of other foods.)

No Pay Hike For Assemblymen?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of Ohio's 111th General Assembly, starting their final year of deliberations this week, are not very likely to vote themselves a pay raise.

To do so, says the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures, probably would mean a risk of voting themselves out of office. Negative reaction to increases, justified or not, is generally prevalent nationwide, the conference said.

The conference, headquartered in Denver, Colo., says a survey it conducted among the states showed Ohio had about average increases in legislative salaries over a 15-year period, starting in 1960.

Average biennial compensation over those years grew by 775 percent from $5,297 in 1960 to $19,885 in 1975. However, the conference pointed out that when cost-of-living increases are considered, with added time lawmakers must devote to their official duties, the increase was "not quite 10 per cent."

During the period, Ohio legislative salaries went from $5,000 in the early 1960s to $8,000 in 1967, $12,750 in 1972 and $17,500 in 1974. However, the legislature switched from sessions every other year to annual unlimited sessions in 1969.

The conference said Ohio's legislature met 172 days in the 1973-1974 biennium compared to 106 days in 1963-1964.

Ohio is one of only a few states of comparable size that doesn't pay at least some members' expenses. The only fringe benefit was listed as mileage from home to the capital and back once a week at 15 cents a mile.

Highest salaries as of 1975 were being paid to legislators in New York ($23,500), California ($21,120), and Illinois ($20,000). The lowest was New Hampshire where members receive $200 per biennium.

California was among those giving lawmakers the most in terms of per diem expenses, staff allowances and other prerequisites. It provides a leased automobile and gasoline credit card for each member.

The citizens' conference said the increase in average salaries was boosted primarily because higher salaries are concentrated in a handful of states. Generally the higher paying states were those who imposed the greatest workloads with unlimited annual sessions—California, New York, Illinois and Ohio among them. Ohio also was near average in the differential paid to leaders of the House and Senate. Such increments include $7,500 a year for House speaker and Senate leader and an extra $5,000 for assistant majority and minority leaders.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Bird Lover Scores Abby

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "move that cursing myna bird to the garage, basement or some other isolated place so people won't be offended by its vulgarity" was strictly for the birds.

If a bird is isolated for a long period of time, it will become listless and unhappy. Birds need the sound of a human voice or the company of other birds to keep them happy and healthy.

Also, myna birds are tropical birds, and as such, they are highly susceptible to pneumonia and should be kept warm and out of drafts. (I lost two canaries in one week by foolishly placing them in a drafty kitchen.)

Please, Abby, in the name of humanity print this!

BIRD LOVER

DEAR BIRD LOVER: All right. Here's your letter. Now all you folks out there, please keep your birds warm!

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are now 21 and 19. We are married now, but when we were young (12 and 10) we were both sexually molested by our brother-in-law on numerous occasions. We were very close to our mother, and we had no father, so we had nobody to turn to. We were naive and very frightened, so we just kept it to ourselves.

The problem is not ours now because what has happened is in the past, but this brother-in-law is now the father of two adopted daughters, ages 4 and 6, and we are afraid that he might molest them.

How do we go about telling our sister that her husband is abnormal? Is it too late for us to do anything now to prevent him from molesting his children?

BEEN THROUGH IT

DEAR BEEN: Try to establish a close relationship with the two little girls so that they will tell you if their father takes any indecent liberties with them. I don't recommend your telling your sister or anyone else. Bringing up the past now could create an ugly situation needlessly, but do keep your eyes open!

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 40 years to a lovely, compassionate, gentle woman. She's about as near to perfection as a wife can be. But she has developed a habit in recent years that has begun to irritate me no end.

If a woman acquaintance dies, my wife develops instant "compassion" for the widower, and it's "Let's invite poor Jim over for dinner, or bridge, or for the evening."

Whenever we have a party, she says, "Don't you think we should invite poor John? He must be so lonely."

She is the only one among our friends who has this type of interest and compassion.

Abby, I have had it. How do I put a stop to it without appearing to be a jealous husband?

UPSET IN URBANA

DEAR UPSET: Look at it this way: Should YOU ever find yourself alone, wouldn't you want to be shown the same compassion and interest?

State Needing More Prisons?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio prisons soon may be admitting convicted felons through the front door and releasing them through the back unless more facilities are built, a state lawmaker claims.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, says there is a danger that Ohio will be ordered by the federal government to cut the number of persons admitted because facilities fail to meet minimum standards.

Seven states—Florida, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, North Carolina, and Alabama—already have received such orders. "Without additional funding to accommodate increased space needs, Ohio could face, in the near future, a similarly explosive situation," the Westerville attorney said.

He and Rep. Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, are proposing in the newly convened legislature a constitutional amendment that would provide $250 million in bonds for new prison and youth detention facilities. They envisioned 15-year bonds would be paid off with an 80 cents hike in the $2.25 liquor gallonage tax and a one-cent boost in the 15 cents-a-pack cigarette tax.

Norris and Lehman, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, acted independently of their respective leaderships. But they predict their June ballot issue will draw wide support.

Among other things, they believe Ohioans who have been demanding tougher penalties for convicted lawbreakers will see the need for the 5,000-unit expansion.

"For years, the citizens of Ohio have been calling upon judges to 'lock em up.' During the past two years, judges have been locking them up at an increasing rate," said Norris.

Other factors which have contributed to a 47 per cent increase in correctional institution populations in the last two years include tougher penalties that were put into the revised criminal code, and a reduction in the use of shock parole, he said. While the latter has been reduced "greatly," Norris continued, "I nevertheless believe there is evidence that criminals are receiving early release who normally would not, provided prison space were available."

Norris and Lehman concede the state's voters indicated an abhorrence for new taxes with their defeat last Nov. 4 of Gov. James A. Rhodes' bond issue package. But they noted Rhodes asked for his in taxes on essentials—sales and gasoline—while theirs calls for hikes in so-called "sin" taxes. And, said Lehman, "we think we can fully demonstrate the need."

The legislators are pushing for needs listed by Corrections Chief George F. Denton, which include $188 million in new adult institutions, $31 million in additions and renovations at existing adult facilities and $31 million of improvements at juvenile centers.

New adult facilities would be constructed in northeast, northern, and central Ohio, and in the greater Cincinnati area. In all, they would provide 5,000 new corrections units.

Cleveland Area Returning To Life

CLEVELAND (AP) — Between the central city's skyscrapers and the encircling suburbs is a once-dying west side area that's returning to life. It's Ohio City, an original settlement on the banks of the Cuyahoga River that remained a prosperous city for years until Cleveland annexed it in 1854.

Through the years it became a haven for European immigrants, but then they began moving to the suburbs. New immigrants came from Appalachia, Puerto Rico and the southern United States.

Through the 1950s and 1960s, Ohio City began to crumble. By 1968, much of it seemed ready for the wrecking ball.

But Carl Heintel, a bank president, and Bruce Hedderson, a newcomer employed in the area, felt it had a future.

Hedderson says he took walks during the lunch hour and realized many improvements on the East Coast to preserve antiquity could be applied in Ohio City.

With a bank's help and that of other interested citizens, revitalization began. John Saile, a beverage distributor and restaurant owner, was among the first to restore an ancient home.

He felt the building was uninhabitable when he first saw it, despite the 22 occupants in its three stories.

With sandblasting for its brick and a coat of gray paint for its shutters, the 14-room home took on a Bostonian appearance.

Saile now makes his residence in nine of the rooms. When he walks around the neighborhood, he sees a trip back in time: Some buildings date back to 1835, and most were built from 1865 to 1890.

But the area is densely built. Zoning authorities say new construction and restoration must be prohibited if it requires a zoning variance because laws don't permit houses to be so close together.

Hedderson disagrees. "The city must provide some variance to zoning laws to preserve the charm of the area," he said.

Houses with lawns and driveways and garages are fine for the suburbs and those who want to live there, he says, but "some of us enjoy the house fronting on the street, close together,

Trainees Building Low-Cost Homes

NEWPORT, Vt. (AP) — A group of northern Vermonters is building inexpensive homes for low-income families and learning a trade at the same time.

Standing timber is turned into finished houses by the logging, sawmill and carpentry businesses run by the Orleans County Council of Social Agencies.

"We have a lot of chronically unemployed people here, very few natural resources and a serious housing shortage," said Thomas Hahn, council executive director. "But one thing we do have is a lot of lumber."

The council owns its own logging equipment and leases two saw mills for its operation here in the area known as Vermont's Northeast Kingdom. Most of the labor comes from unskilled workers who are paid with federal manpower training money.

"They don't make much money — usually $2.10 an hour — but they're being trained so their skills are more marketable," says council spokesman Jeff Hall. "And that's why we're able to sell our houses so cheaply."

The three bedroom, ranchstyle homes made by the council are priced at about $18,000 and are sold only to families whose annual income is under $7,500, Hall said. The retail value of the buildings is about $26,000, he said.

"We just completed four or five homes in Newport. As soon as the holes were dug, the houses were sold," he said.

The homes come completely furnished — carpeted and with all standard appliances.

"They're for people who otherwise might be in a substandard apartment building," Hall said. "The family would pay just as much for rent and at the same time not be making an investment toward their future. We're trying to change that."

The council's roughly 40 logging and building workers usually leave within a year to take better jobs with a private logging company or contractor. The project began in 1971.

"But with the current job market the way it is we haven't been able to turn them over once a year lately," Hall said.

Public reaction to the threecounty project is mixed, said Hahn.

"The people who buy our houses could not afford one on the private market, so we're not taking business away from contractors," he said. "And the private builders know where they can always get a good worker — from us." Financing, appliances and furnishings for the homes come from local bankers and merchants, giving the area's economy a boost, he said.

Still, Hahn said there is resentment, primarily from persons whose incomes are just above the eligibility limit.

"Why does that guy deserve a house when we can't afford one is their reaction," said Hahn. "I guess I would resent it, too."

Ask Ruling On Deaths

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — State Medical Board administrator Dr. William Lee said he'll ask Atty. Gen. William J. Brown to rule on whether doctors must see patients after death and diagnose the cause before signing death certificates.

A recent survey by the Dayton Daily News indicated that of 537 persons who died in Montgomery County nursing homes during a 12-month period only 55 were seen after death by the doctors who signed their death certificates.

Steven Milby, an assistant Dayton city prosecutor, ruled recently that doctors must see patients after death and determine the cause if they are going to sign death certificates.

Milby's formal opinion had been sought by the medical board.

Ohio regulations require that the death certificate be "signed by the physician who attended the deceased or by the coroner within 48 hours after death." The regulations define the attending physician as the person in charge of the patient's care "for the illness or condition which resulted in death."

Montgomery County Coroner Dr. Robert A. Zipt said he believes it is perfectly proper for one physician to sign a death certificate for another doctor.

Permitting people to move in and restore or build in the area is "giving people an opportunity to take control of their own environment," he says.

The head of the development corporation that's handling much of the financing behind such purchase and restoration, Robert Wagner, says the company isn't making anyone retain the antiquated decor. Rather, he says, "community pressure exercises that authority."

RP Selects Cast For Production

Tryouts were held Sunday at Memorial Hall for the Feb. 12-14 Roundtown Players' production of Joseph Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Directing the play is Mike Alkire assisted by Marilyn Sprenger.

All seats will be reserved and sold at the ticket office with a schedule to be announced at a later date.

Members of the cast are: Abby Brewster, Judith Stuckey; The Rev. Dr. Harper, Gladen Troutman; Teddy Brewster, Rene Saxton; Officer Brophy, Keith Sanders; Officer Klein, Frank McKay; Martha Brewster, Ann Hoffman; Elaine Harper, Pat May; Mortimer Brewster, Steve Stevenson; Mr. Gibbs, Bill McIntyre; Jonathan Brewster, Ed Herel; Dr. Einstein, Dr. Jerry Wesler; Officer O'Hara, Harry Payne; Lt. Flags Stay On Uniforms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — American flags are to remain a part of the uniform of the Columbus police department, but on the basis of some authorities' interpretations the officers will have to switch sleeves.

Right now the flag patches are worn on the right shoulder, but interpretation of federal law and defense department instructions, by the Air Force would have American flag patches worn on the left side.

An Air Force spokesman said "the rationale for left side only is that when the flag is worn the field of stars must be closest to the heart with the stripes trailing away from the direction of travel."

At the U.S. Army's Institute of Heraldry in Alexandria, Va., a spokesman agreed. But he pointed out that there is one way the flag can be worn on the right side: by reversing the design so that the union—or stars—are forward.

Reclassifying Jobs Troublesome

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Most state employees get a raise and a new job title this week, but the process of reclassifying more than 80,000 civil service workers may yet prove to be a bureaucratic nightmare.

"We still face a mountain of paperwork," Administrative Services Director Richard L. Krabach said of the new system which calls for replacement of 800 old classifications with 1,278 updated categories.

"We've had to spend all of our time on just mechanics," he added. "We'll have a tremendous number of appeals because of misunderstandings." He estimates anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 complaints could be lodged in the coming months.

Krabach traces part of the problem to the State Controlling Board's refusal last August to provide $904,000 to ease implementation of the new standards. The controllers said $250,000 would be sufficient.

Most of that money has been eaten up by the mechanics involved in assigning new jobs titles and adjusting pay scales, Krabach said. Beginning this week, all civil service employees got at least a 20 cent per hour raise, funded by a $56 million legislative appropriation.

A large chunk of the money Krabach requested from the control board would have been used for informational programs to acquaint state employees with the complexities of the revised system. This type of advance orientation, including face-to-face interviews, would have headed off the expected deluge of appeals, he contends.

Paring his request by $654,000 was "penny wise and pound foolish, the Rhodes administration cabinet officer said. He noted that Atty. Gen. William J. Brown was seriously concerned about the cost to the state of wide-scale formal appeals before the State Personnel Board of Review.

"Where was he last August?" Krabach said, referring to a letter he received from Brown urging an "all-out effort" by administrative services to resolve problems informally.

Krabach said the money controllers denied his department would have allowed him to hire 40 specialists to explain the new system to the state's work force.

Brown wants Krabach to handle complaints resulting from "errors made in the reclassification process or because of simple misunderstandings."

"There is simply no point in defending appeals in situations where factual mistakes were made," he wrote. "As to the other challenges, one would hope that more than 50 per cent can be disposed of by a personalized, face-to-face discussion with the involved employees."

The attorney general provided an example:

"These challenges can be expected to arise from an employee's failure to understand that a change from...a Personnel Tech 3 (old pay range from $5.13 an hour to $6.45 an hour) to Personnel Tech 2 (new pay range from $5.55 an hour to $6.75 an hour) is, in fact, assignment to a parallel if not higher pay range, and certainly not assignment to a lower classification."

Brown, as state government's attorney would represent administrative services, the state's personnel agency, in employee appeals before the personnel board.

Tavern Owners Robbed By Trio

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The owners of an east side tavern were robbed of an estimated $39,000 in cash Wednesday by three armed men, police said.

John Wygant, 67, and his wife Ellen, 66, were opening the the Music Box when the robbery occurred, police said.

Wygant said $30,000 was wrapped in preparation for deposit in a local bank. He said he had decided to deposit the money after friends persuaded him it would be safer in a bank. Wygant said he kept the money in his apartment above the tavern because he did not need the interest that would be paid on the funds by a bank.

Police said the crime was one of the largest cash robberies in memory, excluding bank robberies.

Willard Painting Started As Cartoon

CINCINNATI (AP) — The famous painting "Spirit of '76" by Ohio artist Archibald Willard actually started out to be a humorous cartoon, according to a descendant.

However, the artist departed from his mischievous style when his father, the model for the central figure, became ill.

Willard Gordon, of Fallbrook, Calif., visiting here with relatives, made the comments about his great, great uncle, Archibald Willard.

Willard, born in Bedford, Ohio in 1836, painted the famous depiction of a drum and fire corps which is being used by many this Bicentennial year.

As circumstances would have it, the painter's father who posed for the central character in the three-figure work developed an illness and transformed the mood of the painting, Gordon said.

"And it became the serene and serious painting we know today," said Gordon, an American Airlines captain.

He attended an exhibition of Willard's work in Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday sponsored by Wellington, Ohio. The artist spent his early years in Wellington and it was there that his humorous flair became recognized.

Gordon recalled the story of how the artist painted a sitting resemblance of his preacher father on an exterior wall of the family outhouse. It was just one of his many antics, Gordon said.

"Willard loved humor, America and yes, his father," said Gordon who regards his ancestor as the Norman Rockwell of the 1800s.

The artist used this combination to paint what started as a commemorative cartoon for the country's centennial celebration in Philadelphia

Ohio Awarded Federal Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has been awarded $1,999,315 in federal funds by the U.S. Department of Transportation as an incentive to continue its safe driving program, U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr. announced.

Taft said the state's reduced traffic fatality record prompted the award. He added that the grant was the largest given the 17 states qualified to participate in the federal highway safety program.

Donald Cook, director of the state Department of Highway Safety, said the money given Ohio will be plowed back into continuing programs of driver's education and enforcement of traffic laws.

Cook said the fatality rate in 1974 was 1,900, a reduction of 485 from 1973 figures. Preliminary figures for 1975, he said, show 1,728 persons killed on state roads.

in 1876, Gordon said.

But when his father became ill, Willard did not want to replace him. Gordon said the painting became the biggest hit of the Philadelphia celebration despite the displays of major European art works.

Gordon has been cataloging Willard's painting for the past 15 years and is presently working on a book about the artist.

Gordon estimated there are about 400 works done by Willard, but only about two-thirds have been located.

Gordon said there are about seven or eight versions of "Spirit of '76" and one is currently riding on the Bicentennial Freedom Train.

According to the Encyclopedia Americana, John H. Devereux, the railroad pioneer whose son was the model for the drummer boy, acquired the painting in 1880 and presented it to the town of Marblehead, Mass., where it now hangs.

Timken Reports Rising Income

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Timken Co., maker of tapered roller bearings and alloy steels, estimated its 1975 net income at about $5.50 per share, up from 1974's $5 per share. The firm also said sales were up about $804 million, an increase over the $738.9 million in sales reported for a year ago.

In 1974 Timken earned slightly less than $56 million. No estimate was made by the company for total net 1975 income. It said audited figures will be released in early March.

The company said both the 1975 estimates and the figures from 1974 include results of Latrobe Steel Co., acquired last April by Timken.

22 Train To Be N.Y. Harbor Pilots

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-two apprentices are currently training to become New York Harbor pilots, reports "Compass," a magazine published by MOAC, commercial marine insurer. The training takes 15 years.

As part of their training, apprentices are required to sketch from memory the 700-mile shoreline of the country's busiest port and memorize innumerable statistics on channel soundings, tides, currents, distances between landmarks and other navigational data, notes "Compass."

Last year, the 130 members of the Sandy Hook Pilots Assn. servicing New York Harbor handled foreign trade worth a record $39 billion — a figure about equal to the gross national product of Switzerland.

Reclassifying Jobs Troublesome

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Most state employees get a raise and a new job title this week, but the process of reclassifying more than 80,000 civil service workers may yet prove to be a bureaucratic nightmare.

"We still face a mountain of paperwork," Administrative Services Director Richard L. Krabach said of the new system which calls for replacement of 800 old classifications with 1,278 updated categories.

"We've had to spend all of our time on just mechanics," he added. "We'll have a tremendous number of appeals because of misunderstandings." He estimates anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 complaints could be lodged in the coming months.

Krabach traces part of the problem to the State Controlling Board's refusal last August to provide $904,000 to ease implementation of the new standards. The controllers said $250,000 would be sufficient.

Most of that money has been eaten up by the mechanics involved in assigning new jobs titles and adjusting pay scales, Krabach said. Beginning this week, all civil service employees got at least a 20 cent per hour raise, funded by a $56 million legislative appropriation.

A large chunk of the money Krabach requested from the control board would have been used for informational programs to acquaint state employees with the complexities of the revised system. This type of advance orientation, including face-to-face interviews, would have headed off the expected deluge of appeals, he contends.

Paring his request by $654,000 was "penny wise and pound foolish," the Rhodes administration cabinet officer said. He noted that Atty. Gen. William J. Brown was seriously concerned about the cost to the state of wide-scale formal appeals before the State Personnel Board of Review.

"Where was he last August?" Krabach said, referring to a letter he received from Brown urging an "all-out effort" by administrative services to resolve problems informally.

Krabach said the money controllers denied his department would have allowed him to hire 40 specialists to explain the new system to the state's work force.

Brown wants Krabach to handle complaints resulting from "errors made in the reclassification process or because of simple misunderstandings."

"There is simply no point in defending appeals in situations where factual mistakes were made," he wrote. "As to the other challenges, one would hope that more than 50 per cent can be disposed of by a personalized, face-to-face discussion with the involved employees."

The attorney general provided an example:

"These challenges can be expected to arise from an employee's failure to understand that a change from...a Personnel Tech 3 (old pay range from $5.13 an hour to $6.45 an hour) to Personnel Tech 2 (new pay range from $5.55 an hour to $6.75 an hour) is, in fact, assignment to a parallel if not higher pay range, and certainly not assignment to a lower classification."

Brown, as state government's attorney would represent administrative services, the state's personnel agency, in employee appeals before the personnel board.

Set Hearing On A-Plant

CINCINNATI (AP) — Officials of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board in Washington will hold a conference here Jan. 23 in preparation for hearings on whether to issue an operating license for a Moscow, Ohio, nuclear power plant.

The commission said it decided to conduct the hearings after receiving petitions from several groups, including the city of Cincinnati.

The regulatory commission said it also had received petitions from the Miami Valley Power Project and two southwestern Ohio residents. No date has been set for the hearing.

The multimillion dollar facility is under construction on the north bank of the Ohio River, 24 miles southeast of Cincinnati. It is a joint project of Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. and the Dayton Power & Light Co.

Cincinnati, in its petition to the regulatory board, said it was concerned about possible nuclear contamination of its water supply. The city's waterintake facilities are located about 20 miles downstream in the Ohio River from the the new plant.

Plant Blast Case Summed Up

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A federal prosecutor argued Wednesday that 10 weeks of evidence against nine men accused of destroying a huge factory in Shelton shows the company's president stood to profit from the arson and the eight others helped him.

U.S. Atty. Peter C. Dorsey summed up the case for a 12-member jury as final arguments opened in the U.S. District Court trial.

Dorsey said the evidence against defendant Charles Moeller, the company president, was largely circumstantial. But he added financial problems at his plant and $35,000 paid to another defendant implicates him.

"All the motivation lies in insurance policies on which the company claimed nearly $63 million for losses in the fire," he said.

Moeller, the Rev. David N. Bubar and eight Pennsylvania men were indicted on arson related charges a month after dynamite blasts fed by gasoline destroyed the 2½ block long Sponge Rubber Products Co. plant.

One of the 10 men, John W. Shaw, 28, of Pittsburgh, Pa., later agreed to testify against the others and is the key witness in the case.

Moeller, 48, of Cridersville, Ohio, heads and owns 58 per cent of the stock of Ohio Decorative Products, Sponge Rubber's parent company. Bubar is a Memphis, Tenn. minister who claims to have psychic powers and was friend and spiritual advisor to Moeller.

In a three-hour summation Dorsey referred frequently to a pile of documents and photographs on a table before him as he traced the defendants' farflung movements.

Shaw, who has admitted involvement in a Pittsburgh arson case, testified that Bubar organized the alleged plot and obtained $35,000 to pay the arsonists on an order from the company "owners" that the plant be destroyed.

All defendants except Moeller were placed by testimony in or near the Shelton plant the day it was blown up. Bubar admitted in pre trial testimony that he was there but claimed it was because of a water treatment process he was developing.

The government claims three masked men took the only three employees in plant away from the area shortly before the explosions.

Other defendants are: Peter Betres, 54, Ronald D. Betres, 32, and Donald L. Connors, 40, all of Butler, Pa.; Anthony A. Just, 48, of Greensburg, Pa.; Dennis C. Tiche, 28, and his cousin, Michael J. Tiche, 22, both of Boyers, Pa.; and Albert Coffey, 43, of Cleveland, Ohio.

After each defense attorney has made his rebuttal argument and Judge Jon O. Newman has outlined the charges, the jurors will be left to sort out testimony and evidence to decide the guilt or innocence of each of the nine defendants on an array of confusing charges.

The jury probably won't begin deliberations until next week.

All nine are charged with three counts: causing and conspiring to cause arson through interstate travel and receiving explosives used in the crime.

The judge Wednesday dismissed a fourth count, interstate transportation of explosives for arson, against Ronald Betres but allowed it to stand against the other eight.

The jury will consider evidence that includes long lists of telephone calls supposedly made as the plot developed. Also in evidence are bank records and insurance and debt documents which the government claims show the Sponge Rubber plant was in financial trouble. The evidence also includes invoices and motel and hotel records containing aliases defendants allegedly used.

Dorsey said some of the evidence may seem merely coincidental when considered alone but that taken together it supports the charges.

Anticipating an attack on the credibility of his star witness, the U.S. Attorney took special care to show the relationship between Shaw's testimony and that of others.

Leaving Moeller's link until last, he attempted to show a close relationship between the company president and Bubar and the lack of an arson motive solely on the minister's part.

"This conspiracy did not stop with David Bubar," he said. Moeller's lawyer, Theodore I. Koskoff, repeatedly interrupted Dorsey to object to his portrayal of the evidence.

Tax Protest Said Justified

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes told a group from Ashtabula county Wednesday that increases in their real estate reappraisals "look outrageous on the face of it."

The governor met for two hours with members of the Ashtabula County protest movement which complained about increases of up to 500 per cent in their real estate reappraisals.

Rhodes told the group he would like to eliminate the practice of yearly updates of appraisals between the mandatory six-year re-evaluations. Charles S. Lopeman, chairman of the State Board of Tax Appeals, who also attended the meeting, said he would look into the complaints.

DIRECTOR HONORED — Georgia Walker, executive director of the Pickaway County Chapter of American Cancer Society was honored recently by board members at the home of P.J. Ranck. Mrs. Walker is retiring from the society and the new director, Madeline Sanders, will take over her duties on a full scale at the end of January. Past board presidents present to wish Mrs. Walker good luck were Dave Sealock, Tom Elsea, Earl Palm, Gary Agin, Darrell Hatfield and Steve Stevenson. Guests were Jim Shaw and Valarie Minor. A cake decorated with a large bouquet of flowers and the inscription "Live It Up," and punch were served as refreshments.

Kings Island Names Live Shows Director

KINGS MILLS — A former stage manager in the live shows department at Kings Island, 24 year-old Debbie Denise, has been named live shows director at the family entertainment center.

A native of Dayton, Miss Denise was a seasonal employee of Kings Island for two years before graduating from the University of Cincinnati College — Conservatory of Music in 1973.

For the past two summers she served as live shows director at Lion Country Safari and Kings Dominion, both in Richmond, Va.

As an undergraduate at UC, Miss Denise was awarded one of five Warner Brothers national scholarships. She also received the coveted Peter M. Eden Award as outstanding broadcast major in her graduating class.

Beginning January 12, Miss Denise and the live shows directors from Kings Dominion and Carowinds, the two other Taft Broadcasting Company-operated parks, will conduct auditions for prospective performers in 14 cities around the U.S.

A variety of positions are available in live shows. There are openings for musical theatre performers, actors and actresses, dixieland bands, country and western groups, bluegrass bands, barbershop quartets, pop groups, individual musicians, and technicians.

Salaries range from $115 to $160 per week. Minimum age is 16.

Following is a schedule of the auditions:

January 12, the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga.; January 13, Nashville, Tenn., location to be announced; January 14, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana; January 15, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.; January 16, 17, and 18, Kings Dominion, Richmond, Va.; January 21, North Carolina School of the Arts, Winston-Salem, N.C.; January 22, University of South Carolina, Columbia, S.C.; January 23, 24, 25, Corowinds, Charlotte, N.C.; January 27, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Virginia; January 28, Shenandoah Conservatory, Winchester, Virginia; January 29, Showcase Studios, New York, N.Y.; January 30, Boston College, Boston, Mass.; January 31, University of Maryland, near Washington D. C.; February 1, Catholic University, Washington D. C.; and February 5 through 8, Edgewood College, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Last summer Kings Island employed more than 200 performers in the live shows department and offered almost nine hours of continuous entertainment.

For more information on the auditions contact Kings Productions, 8050 Hosbrook Ct., Cincinnati, Ohio 45236, or one of the parks. The Kings Island address is: P.O. Box 400, Kings Mills, Ohio 45034.

7:30 p.m. — Logan Elm FFA vs Westfall Student Council.

8 p.m. — Circleville Sertoma vs Cook's Cowboy Stars.

The winners of the first two games will meet in the championship game at 8:30 p.m. with the winner receiving the tournament trophy.

Westfall Frosh Drop First Tilt

Westfall's freshman basketball team suffered their first loss to Adena, 31-29, on the winners court.

Roger Grigsby of Adena led all scorers with 16 points.

Bruce Starkey had 14 points, Mark List scored 12 while turning in a fine overall performance, George Kern hit for two and Chris Weaver rounded out Westfall's scoring with one.

Westfall is now, 4-1, for the season.

Celts Trip L.A. Lakers; Win 109-103

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It takes Don Nelson's coldstarting motor a while to warm up.

"I have trouble getting going the first time I'm in a game," the Boston Celtic forward says.

After that, it's all downhill for Nelson—and usually the Celtics, if he gets hot.

Nelson had one of his typical slow starts Wednesday night, but then provided the spark to lead the Celtics to a 109-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Nelson never ran out of gas, scoring 11 of his 18 points after coming off the bench in the fourth quarter.

"I've been working hard in practice," Nelson said. "When you don't play that much you have to. I like to get warm."

"Nelson has had some real good games lately," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn. "He played very well against Los Angeles out there. I put him in in the fourth period to help give us some board. We had Nelson out there with Dave Cowens and Paul Silas. They had smaller people in there. Actually, his scoring was a bonus."

In the other NBA games, the Detroit Pistons nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 119-118 in overtime; the Philadelphia 76ers stopped the Milwaukee Bucks 112-102; the Kansas City Kings nudged the Houston Rockets 108-106; the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Phoenix Suns 114-110 and the Seattle SuperSonics beat the New York Knicks 91-89.

Morrison On TV In Cage Battle

Local basketball fans will have a chance to watch Terry Morrison, former Circleville High School star, 7:30 p.m. Saturday when Otterbein College faces Capital University.

The game will be televised over Channel 4, Columbus, with Jimmy Crum handling the broadcast.

Terry, a senior, is a co-captain and starting guard for the Otterbein squad.

Tribe Makes Draft Picks

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians picked 16 players, four of them pitchers, in the winter baseball draft Wednesday.

The first selection of the club, which selected 13th among all pro baseball teams, was Julian Rodriguez, a 6-1, 190-pound righthanded pitcher from the University of South Carolina.

Phil Seghi, Indians general manager, said he chose Rodriguez because of "high reports from scout Leon Hamilton and because he was the best player available at the time."

If the 19-year-old Rodriguez signs with the Indians, Seghi said he will be assigned to one of the Tribe's minor league teams.

The Indians picked 10 other players in the draft's first phase and five players in the draft's secondary phase. None of the players are from Ohio.

The other draft picks in the regular phase were Jamie Lopez, first baseman and outfielder; Reginald Pearman, first baseman; Cleo Dewitt, catcher and outfielder; Steven Turco, infielder; Ken Jarahek, outfielder; Vic Herold, first baseman; Jeff Muehling, pitcher; Doug Hogan, pitcher; Jerry Valentine, third baseman, and James Johnson, second baseman.

In the secondary phase, the Indians chose Ron Hancock, outfielder; George Mahan, pitcher; Don Eagan, third baseman; Dan Massari, outfielder, and William Evers, catcher and first baseman.

Miami Defeats Toledo, 76-73

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We just had a little revival meeting at half-time," Miami of Ohio basketball Coach Darrell Hedric said of the Redskins' rally from a 21-point deficit to defeat Toledo 76-73.

The victory Wednesday night enabled Miami to keep a share of the Mid-American Conference lead with Western Michigan, a 78-58 winner over Eastern Michigan.

In other league action, Bowling Green defeated Central Michigan 88-72 and Ball State edged Northern Illinois 74-72.

While he gave his players a pep talk during intermission, Hedric said he didn't make any adjustments in Miami's game plan. "We just weren't ready to play in the first half but we were in the second half," he said.

Toledo nearly blew the Redskins out of the fieldhouse in the first half, hitting 62 per cent of its shots and mounting what appeared to be a comfortable 50-31 lead at halftime.

The Rockets widened their lead to 54-33 early in the second half before Miami caught fire in what turned out to be a 69 per cent shooting performance in that period.

After Miami tied it up 64-64 the game remained nip and tuck until John Shoemaker scored the winning basket on a driving layup with 17 seconds left on the clock and Chuck Goodyear clinched the triumph with two free throws.

"I can't explain it," Toledo mentor Bob Nichols said afterward. "We are capable of playing the way we did in the first half but I don't know what happened after that."

"You have to give Miami an awful lot of credit for not giving up," he added.

Goodyear paced Miami, now 2-0 in the MAC and 6-4 overall, with 23 points. Mike Larsen of Toledo, 1-1 and 5-5, with a game-high 26 points.

Western Michigan remained unbeaten with a 2-0 mark in the league and 9-0 for all games as Paul Griffin poured in 21 points and pulled down 10 rebounds.

Western Coach Eldon Miller was surprised by the easy victory. "We just came in here hoping for a one-point win, but we came out better than I thought we would," he said.

Both Miller and Eastern Michigan Coach Al Freund said Eastern's numerous turnovers was a major factor in the outcome.

Sophomore forward Ron Hammye scored a career-high 25 points and Tommy Harris and Dan Hipsler added 17 and 16, respectively, in leading Bowling Green over defending league champion Central Michigan.

Falcon Coach Pat Haley credited the team's improved field goal shooting — 52 per cent compared to a 40 per cent average previously — and a good defensive job for the victory.

Ball State double-teamed nationally ranked scorer Matt Hicks and held him to 14 points, 11 below his average, in squeaking past Northern Illinois.

In other Ohio college basketball action Wednesday night, Xavier of Ohio snapped a threegame losing streak with an 82-64 verdict over Canisius behind the 28-point performance of Gary Whitfield.

Mike Plunkett and Tony Hubbard also combined for 22 points and 19 rebounds as Xavier boosted its season record to 6-5.

Mount Union edged Ohio Northern 65-64 on Ed Pohjala's free throw with two seconds left to play in the Ohio Conference Northern Division opener for both squads.

Findlay notched its seventh straight victory by downing Hoosier-Buckeye Conference foe Defiance 81-75.

Elsewhere, it was Ashland 88, West Liberty State, W.Va. 70; Case Western Reserve 87, Carnegie-Mellon, Pa. 79; Wright State 75, Cleveland State 73; John Carroll 64, Baldwin-Wallace 61; Youngstown State 67, Westminster 53; Central State 87, Wilberforce 56; Gannon 82, Steubenville 64.

Lee And Burroughs Given OAC Honors

CLEVELAND (AP) — A pair of freshmen credited with having become their teams' leaders quickly drew new honors Wednesday from Ohio Athletic Conference basketball coaches for their recent efforts.

Capital's Ricky Lee, a 6-foot-3 190-pounder from Bellaire, and Wooster's Preston Burroughs, a 6-foot-5 center from Ravenna, were named player of the week in the league's two divisions.

Daryl Busse Named Trotting Champion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Daryl Busse was named winner of the North American driving championship for 1975 by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Busse beat out fellow Chicagoan Walter Paisley by just two victories with 360 in a duel that went to the last day of the season.

Artificial Muscle System Tried

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 12-year-old paraplegic boy inspired researchers at Battelle Columbus Laboratories to invent an internal artificial muscle system that is now being developed and evaluated on sheep.

Dr. David Gardner, 37, a physiologist who heads the research team, estimates it will be up to five years before the system could be implanted in humans, depending on how well the artificial muscles perform in sheep over a long period.

Battelle estimates there are 800,000 patients in the United States suffering from muscular dystrophy, strokes, cerebral palsy, muscular atrophy and similar problems who might benefit if the artificial muscles are successfully developed for human use.

One of the coholders of the patent, Kenneth E. Hughes, 36, a bioengineering technologist, ways he and a former colleague at Battelle, Jerry D. Helmer, were inspired by a fatherless 12-year-old paraplegic boy they had often taken flying as part of the "Big Brothers" program. The boy wore exterior braces.

"He made us think about his problems of mobility and being self-conscious from the braces with springs or elastic devices. What was needed was a form of internal braces. He was the inspiration for our invention."

Battelle, a nonprofit independent research organization which performs experiments and tests for both the government and private industry, received a three-year grant to develop the artificial muscle system from the National Institute of Arthritis, Metabolism and Digestive Diseases.

The artificial muscle, which functions similarly to a rubber band, can only be used to replace one muscle of a counteracting pair, such as either the biceps or the triceps of the arm, but not both.

It has been implanted in the legs of eight sheep thus far by orthopedic surgeons who cut out the three major muscles and attached the artificial device to the natural tendons. A second option would be to remove the tendons and attach the artificial muscle to the bone.

The researchers say there has been difficulty in installing the prosthetic muscles made from silicone rubber, but with each new implant on the sheep there has been improvement. They say that most of the time the sheep walk quite well, instead of throwing or dropping their leg.

Gardner says plans call for experimenting with 10 to 15 sheep a year over a three-year period for long-term evaluation to determine the right muscle tone, stress, and whether the body will accept foreign substances without adverse effects. Silicone rubber already has been used to replace arthritic joints.

Hunting Preserves Have Good Shooting

We quickened our pace as the gaudy ringneck rooster legged it down a fencerow ahead of us, betraying its location occasionally by ducking in and out of heavy cover, more like a roadrunner than a pheasant.

The scene unfolded on the 350-acre Elk Lake Shooting Park near Bucyrus. The month was February, long past the close of legal pheasant hunting on private land in Ohio.

Because we were hunting a licensed shooting preserve, however, we were within the law and, for the same reason, inclined to underestimate our quarry.

The aforementioned ringneck, for example, galloped to the end of the field, flushed with a triumphant cackle and escaped as we took our time, confident that no pen-raised bird would outsmart a quartet of hunters wise to the ways of the more sporting wild pheasant.

Talks Stalled At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Stalled contract talks between the Cincinnati and 6,000 city workers dimmed today after hard-line statements from city officials and police.

After the city upped its pay increase offer Wednesday from 6.5 to 7 per cent, City Manager William Donaldson declared: "This is it. We are not going any higher."

He said he had been instructed to hold firm by city council.

Donaldson's remarks came as negotiators for the police issued an ultimatum, saying that if no agreement is reached by 7 p.m. Monday, a special membership meeting of police officers will be held to discuss a strike.

Contracts for unions representing police, firemen and nonuniformed workers expired Dec. 31.

Firefighters are scheduled to hold the first of two membership meetings tonight to vote on a tentative agreement that would provide a 7 per cent pay hike plus fringe benefits. No results from the balloting will be announced until after voting at a second meeting Friday.

Forrest Buckley, president of the Cincinnati Firefighters Association, said Wednesday he thought the tentative agreement would pass.

Slate Seminar On Litigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A seminar on litigation techniques will be conducted Jan. 9 in Akron by the Ohio Academy of Trial Lawyers, academy president Robert F. Thornton, of Williard announced.

Seminar chairman Sheldon B. Braverman, of Cleveland, said emphasis will be placed on Ohio's new medical malpractice law during the day-long meeting.

This will be the third meeting in a series that started last November. A fourth will be held Feb. 6 in Dayton.

Judges, law professors and law students are invited to participate in the seminar at no cost.

To the delight of the home crowd, the Crusaders exploded for five goals in the second period and swamped the Mariners 8-3. The triumph lifted the Crusaders to third place in the World Hockey Association's east division.

it as an alternative to gunning on crowded public lands or on diminishing private acreage where the ringneck is becoming increasingly scarce.

Both views can be valid. Some put-and-take hunting operations amount to little more than legalized massacre of slow-moving birds.

But at a quality preserve, pheasants are raised in spacious pens and placed in the fields to adapt to wild conditions long before hunters are sent to pursue them. Farmland licensed for preserve shooting will hold birds indefinitely if cover is adequate and the fields are cut properly.

A well-managed preserve can provide shooting that will very nearly equal the sport available in the wild, except that hunters are assured more birds.

One major advantage of preserve hunting is the sevenmonth season on licensed lands from Sept. 1 to April 30. The regular upland season runs for one month on private land, two months on public areas.

The cost of preserve shooting varies widely, although fees can be expected to start at about $5 per bird with a four-pheasant minimum.

If you care only about meat hunting, you needn't be choosy about selecting a preserve. You can kill birds on any of them.

But it would pay to shop around if you place a premium on good sport. Ask operators how their preserve is managed and talk with hunters who have gunned there.

Rod Thorn is playing one-ups-manship. And he's got the two players to do it.

"I think it's a real advantage to platoon our two centers — Randy Denton and Caldwell Jones," says the coach of the Spirits of St. Louis. "It's impossible for the opponents' center to go 48 minutes and be able to stop two fresh guys coming in and out of the game."

The Spirits' 1-2 punch worked to perfection Wednesday night while beating the Indiana Pacers 114-112 in an overtime American Basketball Association game.

"Randy Denton was the key tonight," said Thorn after watching his big man score 20 points, same as Jones.

Freddie Lewis added 25 points in the high-powered Spirit offense.

"When I have the shots the coach tells me to take them," said Lewis. "But we have to go inside in order to win and it's my job to get the ball inside to guys like Marvin Barnes, Denton and Jones."

In the other ABA games, the San Antonio Spurs beat the Denver Nuggets 121-118 and the Virginia Squires pounded the New York Nets 112-89.

Lewis scored 16 points in the second half and seven in overtime for St. Louis. The Pacers, dropping their sixth straight game, blew a 16-point lead in the third quarter. Barnes finished with 23 points for the winners.

Tommy Harris Named Top MAC Player

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — This season's first Mid-American Conference Basketball Player of the Week award has gone to Bowling Green guard Tommy Harris, who scored 82 points in three games.

The 6-foot-4 junior, a transfer from Vincennes (Ind.) Junior College, also had 12 rebounds, 10 assists and five steals in Bowling Green defeats by North Texas State, Long Beach State and Western Michigan.

Bottle Search

Launched

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide search has been launched by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute to find the oldest glass containers produced in this country.

The search is being conducted in conjunction with the institute's traveling exhibit, "A History of our Country as Seen through Glass," which is currently visiting shopping centers and state fairs

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE
Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): If you're planning an unusual venture, it would be better to "go it alone" for the present. Associates may be unreliable or impractical.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): A good word from the right source may enable you to attain the recognition you have been seeking. You have just cause for optimism.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Stick close to facts and control that imagination of yours. Don't try to put a square peg into a round hole. Pick your way discreetly.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You may face some complications — in quite unexpected areas. How you handle situations and the pace you set will determine their solution.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Certain events can act as guideposts in the future. Keep attuned to new trends and don't miss a trick.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Face possible changes with equanimity. With YOUR know-how and ingenuity, you can cope. Romance in high favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Here's a time for some retrenching, digging in to reappraise situations. Be ready, nevertheless, to move ahead when conditions so demand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Don't reject suggestions without giving them thorough consideration. You might overlook an idea which COULD be developed profitably.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Good Jupiter influences favor unusual innovations and clever strategies. A fine period in which to put over unusual ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You are always ambitious, and this day will open up new areas in which to profit by your know-how. Results may not be immediate, however, so be patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Allow for some delays in carrying out your program, but don't create them needlessly yourself. Crisp, consistent action needed to top the competition.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Poor scheduling could distract, send you completely off the track in some cases. Harness efforts for a concerted drive toward your goals.

YOU BORN TODAY are a roundly talented individual, with a special affinity for the intellectual, the scientific and creative. You also have fine business acumen and, should you choose commerce as a career, would be highly successful at it. In this case, however, you will almost be certain to choose one of the arts as an avocation — probably finding in either music or poetry the most satisfying outlet for your emotions. Other fields suited to your talents: medicine, the law, education and politics — where you would probably make an eminent name for yourself as a reformist. All the natives of this Capricornian sector are noted for their meticulousness, purposefulness, love of order and willingness to work hard to achieve their objectives.

Birthdate of: Thomas Watson, English poet; Carrie C. Cott, early American suffragette; Richard M. Nixon, 37th Pres., U.S.A.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — A major question that affects all mankind is being asked today: Who has custody of the letter "N," the mighty National Broadcasting Co. or the tiny Nebraska Educational Television Network?

Don't laugh. This is serious. NBC spent 14 months pondering and planning a new corporate identification symbol to replace one in use since Jan. 14, 1959, a serpentine version of the letters NBC.

Executives brooded and mulled, costly research was ordered and a high-powered corporate design firm, Lippincott & Margulies, Inc., of New York, was summoned to lend a hand.

It was no small matter, since the changeover of a broadcast firm's corporate symbol can cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, since everything from station breaks to stationery must bear the new sign.

In April, when NBC's mulling still was going on, Ron Hull, program manager of Nebraska's nine-station public TV system, decided his network also needed a new symbol. He didn't know NBC had planned one.

He summoned NETV's art director, Bill Korbus, and asked him to draw up some ideas. Three weeks and less than $100 worth of materials later, Hull says, his 25-member staff chose the winning symbol by a 13 to 12 vote.

On Dec. 30, NBC held a news conference to unveil its new symbol. It was an abstract version of the letter "N" which on color TV is red and blue.

On New Year's Day, Hull was watching NBC's preview of the Tournament of Roses parade, saw the new NBC symbol and was flat startled.

He said it was identical to the futuristic "N" NETV has used in its newspaper ads since June and in its broadcasts since fall. The only difference is that his "N" is red on a gray background.

"I honestly looked at the dial, because I thought I was on our own channel," he said of that New Year's Day vision.

Hull says he's consulting with Washington lawyers NETV has hired and "they say we have a very good case of claiming that we have prior rights to that logo."

While it never was copyrighted, he said, he's been told that would pose no problem should NETV take the matter of the "N" to court. He said he may know by Friday if any action will be taken.

NBC, understandably jittery about the whole thing, says, "We don't believe there will be any confusion between the new NBC symbol" and that of NETV. But it refuses to answer any questions about it.

Saving Oil In Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — According to Factory Magazine, if industry is to convert from oil to coal to reduce America's dependence on foreign oil, about 42,000 steam plants in factories will have to be replaced because they cannot be converted to burn coal. This would cost $68 billion over the next 10 years but would save about two million barrels of oil per day.

The magazine suggests a less expensive alternative: replacing only the 300 largest installations at a cost of $11 billion, which would save 1.6 barrels of oil per day.

Bottle Search Launched

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide search has been launched by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute to find the oldest glass containers produced in this country.

The search is being conducted in conjunction with the institute's traveling exhibit, "A History of Our Country as Seen Through Glass," which is currently visiting shopping centers and state fairs throughout the country.

The public is invited to bring their oldest examples of Early American glass containers to the exhibit. Professional collectors, galleries or bottle dealers are ineligible to participate in this search.

When the search ends next spring, six bottles will be chosen to supplement the exhibit's Americana Collection of Glass. The chosen bottles will temporarily become part of the exhibit, which will be on view at the Smithsonian Folk Life Festival.

You may not believe this, hockey fans, but it's not how you play the game ... it's whether you win or lose. So

Montreal Coach Scotty

Bowman wasn't particularly upset by the Canadiens' hard-fought 2-1 triumph over a

Minnesota North Stars

Wednesday night.

"I'll take it," Bowman said.

"We can win a lot of games on

2-1 scores. I think the North

Stars have tightened up considerably since the last

$3.00 and $2.20. The show time we played them.

They've cut down on their goals against, and that's hard to do. I'm thoroughly pleased with what we've done so far."

The Canadiens, who lead

the National Hockey

League's Norris Conference

by 16 points over the Los Angeles Kings, got all the scoring they needed on first-period goals 22 seconds apart

by Yvon Lambert and Guy

Lafleur.

For a while, it looked as though Montreal goalie Ken

Dryden would shut out the North Stars for the third time in four meetings this season.

But Pierre Jarry scored on a deflection at 16:03 of third period.

Elsewhere, the

Golden Seals defeated the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1.

Judge Taken Off Reserve Case

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A federal judge ordered removed from the nation's biggest antipollution case for taking sides says he did his best "to provide for the maximum protection of the public health."

U.S. District Court Judge Miles W. Lord acknowledged Tuesday's order from the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals lifting his jurisdiction over the Reserve Mining Co. case, but no more.

Lord, the appeals court said from St. Louis, "seems to have shed the robe of the judge and assumed the mantle of the advocate" in the lengthy pollution case.

Russian Winter Wheat Crop Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Much of the winter grain planted in the Soviet Union last fall may be so frail that the 1976 harvest could depend to a large degree on whether the crop gets protective snow cover in a week or two, says an Agriculture Department expert.

But part of the U.S. winter wheat crop also is in poor shape, particularly in the Great Plains where planting was delayed by dry weather last fall.

The department last month tentatively estimated the 1976 U.S. winter wheat crop at less than 1.5 billion bushels, down 9 per cent from last year's record harvest. Officials warned that a more accurate reading will not be possible until spring.

No one is predicting now that the crops in either country are on the verge of catastrophe, but January is a critical month and USDA crop watchers say the situation is potentially grim in Russia.

Fletcher Pope Jr. of the department's Economic Research Service says, however, that the Russian winter crop could survive and yield well if protective snow develops quickly. But reports from Moscow on Tuesday said those were lacking in many parts of the country.

Asked to comment on those reports, Pope said that much depends on whether Russia's grain areas have to endure severe cold without snow for very long. He said January is the most precious time for Soviet winter grain.

"But I think that because of the limited soil moisture last fall that some of it — we really don't know how much — went into winter dormancy in less than optimum condition," Pope said.

Fall-planted grain normally lies dormant during the coldest part of winter and then begins growing in the spring, maturing for harvest in the summer.

The Soviet harvest of all grain last year was 137 million metric tons, the smallest in a decade and about 80 million tons short of Moscow's goal. It forced Russia to buy huge amounts of grain abroad, including 13.2 million tons of wheat and corn from the United States. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Pope said that Moscow's 1976 goal of 206 million tons of grain seems "realistic" in view of past weather and production trends. Fall planting was about on target in terms of acreage, he said.

"I really don't think at this point that we could say that weather or yields will be significantly from trend," Pope said.

Slowdown By Doctors Taken Calmly

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A hospital official says patients are reacting "with surprising calmness" to a doctors' slowdown but that some of the people affected are complaining about problems in obtaining medical care.

"I am absolutely miffed at everybody, and right now it focuses on the doctors," said Irvin Korn of Northridge, who claimed he made "about 50" telephone calls before finding a hospital that would admit his wife for emergency treatment of a hip problem.

The slowdown — which began Jan. 1 to protest skyrocketing malpractice insurance premiums — caused a sharp reduction in services available Tuesday at many private hospitals in Los Angeles county and five surrounding counties. There was a corresponding increase in the caseload at public facilities.

Charles McElroy, emergency services supervisor at the stateoperated UCLA Medical Center, said the emergency room there was averaging about 100 extra patients a day. He said most of those brought in "seem to be taking it with surprising calmness. There are even less complaints than we usually get."

The Korns ended up at UCLA, as did Jeanne Zeltner, another area resident, who said she brought in her 16-year-old son because he became violently ill with a problem stemming from an intestinal birth defect. She said the family surgeon told her he wasn't working and could not help.

Mrs. Zeltner said she holds no grudge against the doctors.

Under the guidance of founder Horace Mann, Antioch College Springs became the first college in the world to employ women professors on the same level as men.

Use Sludge As Fertilizer

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — Ashland officials have announced a program for use of sewage sludge on area farms as a fertilizer supplement.

The city plans to deliver the sludge to farms as a means of helping resolve its disposal problems while at the same time benefitting local agriculture.

The project will be supervised by the city and the local county extension office.

Craig Wiedensahl of the Ohio Agricultural Research and development center said few municipalities are experimenting with such a program even though it is not a new idea. And he cautioned against possible side effects such as the need to control the sludge after application to prevent it from polluting water supplies and to control trace metals contained in the sludge.

Wiedensahl said researchers are still not sure whether the trace metals generated by industry would have any major effects on yield or marketability.

The city plans to monitor sludge trace elements closely and to regulate over the years the amount that can be applied to any given field.

"I have done my best to provide for the maximum protection of the public health consistent with due process to all concerned," the judge said in a brief statement issued by aides. "As of today, I can do no more. I am hopeful that the next judge will be given the power and support necessary to protect the public health of the people in Minnesota and the environment in which we live."

"That's all I'll say today," the smiling, 55-year-old judge told reporters who gathered in his chambers here.

Reserve Mining, which discharges 67,000 tons of waste rock daily into Lake Superior from its Silver Bay, Minn., taconite plant, complained to the appeals court last month that Lord was no longer acting impartially in the case.

The complaint came after Lord, once Minnesota's attorney general, ordered Reserve to pay $100,000 to continue filtration of the municipal water supply at Duluth, Minn., and other communities along the North Shore of Lake Superior.

The 16-page appeals court ruling referred to "obvious impropriety" in Lord's order requiring Reserve to deposit the money "without proper notice and hearing." The court said it was dissolving the district court order and returning the $100,000 deposit to Reserve.

Don Wright, Reserve's director of communications, declined comment on the appeal court's decision.

"We haven't seen it and we won't comment until we've seen it," he said. "It would be very inappropriate to say anything until we see the judges' order."

The appeals court directed the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to "adequately filter drinking water and furnish safe drinking water for the relevant communities on the North Shore of Minnesota" and asked the district court to determine what amounts Reserve must pay for the costs of pollution abatement.

Because of Lord's actions, the appeals court said, the district court "Thus becomes lawyer, witness and judge in the same proceeding, and abandons the greatest virtue of a fair and conscientious judge — impartiality."

Canadiens Top Stars

By The Associated Press

You may not believe this, hockey fans, but it's not how you play the game ... it's whether you win or lose. So Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman wasn't particularly upset by the Canadiens' hard-fought 2-1 triumph over the Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night.

"I'll take it," Bowman said. "We can win a lot of games on 2-1 scores. I think the North Stars have tightened up considerably since the last time we played them. They've cut down on their goals against, and that's hard to do. I'm thoroughly pleased with what we've done so far."

The Canadiens, who lead the National Hockey League's Norris Conference by 16 points over the Los Angeles Kings, got all the scoring they needed on first-period goals 22 seconds apart by Yvon Lambert and Guy Lafleur.

For a while, it looked as though Montreal goalie Ken Dryden would shut out the North Stars for the third time in four meetings this season. But Pierre Larri scored on a deflection at 16:03 of third period.

Elsewhere, the Philadelphia Flyers trounced the Toronto Maple Leafs 7-3, the Los Angeles Kings downed the Kansas City Scouts 5-2 and the California Golden Seals defeated the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1.

Maggie Creed Winner Of Lebanon Feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) - Overcoming a driving snowstorm, Maggie Creed caught the leader at the wire to win Wednesday's featured 2-1 triumph over the photo finish at Lebanon Raceway.

The winner, driven by Todd Christy, went the mile in 2:15 1-5 to return $13.00, $3.60 and $2.20. Tuned In, second, paid $3.00 and $2.20. The show horse was Red Rhapsody at $2.20.

Saginaw, Dayton Improve IHL Records

By The Associated Press

South Division leader Dayton and North leader Saginaw each improved their records Wednesday night in International Hockey League play.

Mike Powers scored three goals and goalie Jim Pettie turned away three shots as the Dayton Gems took a 7-0 victory over the Columbus Owls.

Dayton advances to 21-13-5. The Owls are 11-25-4 for last place in the South Division. In Saginaw, meanwhile, Darcy Ryan and Dennis Desrosiers had three goals each as the Saginaw Gears damped Port Huron 11-3.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - An organization of Dayton area aviation enthusiasts is seeking help in building a replica of a 1911 Wright brothers biplane as part of this year's bicentennial celebration.

The head of the Dayton chapter of the Experimental Aircraft Association, Charles A. Dempsey, said his 100-member group is looking for an empty store in which to build the aircraft, which is expected to cost almost $14,000.

The help being sought is in the form of donation of services, facilities, equipment and materials. Plans call for the plane to fly over Dayton's Fourth of July parade and at other events during the year.

Reagan Budget-Cutting Program Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan describes his $90-billion budget-cutting plan as a move to decentralize government power. An adviser who helped draft it says if the Republican conservative can't sell the proposal to New Hampshire Yankees, he may not deserve to win their presidential primary.

With Reagan's plan emerging as a major issue, President Ford's campaign forces have assembled an item-

by-item account of its price in federal aid to New Hampshire and Florida, two key primary states.

They say the projected cuts would cost New Hampshire at least $28 million in federal aid, and possibly as much as $113 million.

That's not much in federal budget terms — the current federal budget is $374.9 billion — but it is in a state where the budget totals $415 million for the current year and where there is no state income or general sales tax.

In Florida, according to the Ford campaign analysis, the Reagan proposal would cut federal aid by at least $363 million, and possibly by as much as $2.8 billion.

In each case, the lower figure is based on items clearly marked for elimination in the Reagan plan, and the higher one includes categories of aid in the areas he has said should be dropped.

The whole controversy is on paper and almost certainly will stay there no matter who wins the presidency. The Democratic Congress is not about to drop the federal domestic programs Reagan proposes to turn over to the states, among them such things as food stamps, education and welfare aid, school lunch programs and housing subsidies.

It stems from a speech Reagan made in Chicago Sept. 26, advocating a transfer of authority — which means programs, resources and revenues to pay for them — from Washington to state and local governments.

Jeffrey Bell, Reagan's campaign research chief in Washington, said the whole idea is decentralization of government and enhanced local authority. He said the Reagan camp will be happy to have Ford campaigners take it up as an issue.

"We intend to make it a major issue, too," said Bell, a key draftsman of the original Reagan speech. "We think decentralization and getting the power out of Washington is a popular thing."

He said polls conducted for the Reagan campaign nationally and in New Hampshire support that belief.

"Northern New England is the home of the town meeting," Bell said in an interview. "If we can't sell the concept of decentralization and local responsibility there, then maybe we don't deserve to win."

"Federal authority has clearly failed to do the job," Reagan said in the original Chicago speech. "Indeed, it has created more problems in welfare, education, housing, food stamps, Medicaid, community and regional development and revenue sharing, to name a few...."

"Transfer of authority in whole or part in all these areas would reduce the outlay of the federal government by more than $90 billion, using the spending levels of fiscal 1976," the former California governor said.

Reagan said that would make possible a 23 per cent income tax cut, and a $5 billion start on paying off the national debt. He acknowledged there might have to be state tax increases, so states could take over payments on the programs they decide to continue.

According to a two-page account put together by Reagan's Washington staff, the proposed reductions would cut federal spending to a level $81.9 billion below that of the administration budget for the year that ends on June 30. Because of inflation and congressional spending increases, according to the Reagan analysis, the reductions actually would exceed $90 billion.

Reagan had said that would provide room for a $25-billion personal income tax cut and a $5-billion budget surplus.

But taxes already have been cut, at an $18-billion-a-year rate, and the federal deficit is expected to total $70 billion to $74 billion. Some reductions Reagan advocated already have been made. As a result, his proposal would add up to a budget with a relatively small deficit.

Among the programs targeted for cuts under the Reagan plan:

—Welfare, housing and unemployment assistance programs now budgeted for $16.7 billion would be eliminated.

—Federal aid to public education, temporary jobs, Head Start, vocational training programs would be dropped, for a saving of $13.7 billion.

—Revenue sharing with the states and cities would be ended, cutting $6.3 billion.

—Food stamps and child nutrition programs costing $5.3 billion would be dropped.

—There would be a $5.5-billion cut through elimination of urban renewal, city assistance and redevelopment and antipoverty programs.

—The $7.2-billion Medicaid program, which helps pay for medical care for nearly 26 million lower-income Americans, would be dropped.

—A $1.5-billion postal subsidy would be eliminated, with a requirement that the Postal Service balance its budget "at the same time yielding its monopoly on first class mail."

—Mass transportation aid, and all except interstate highway programs would be cut to save $5.1 billion.

—Reagan would eliminate $2.7 billion for air traffic control, air safety and other air transportation programs, on grounds that airlines and their passengers should pay for that.

—The defense budget would not be affected, but Reagan would cut $2 billion in military pension costs by putting them on a contributory basis.

Reagan's proposal is not necessarily to do away with all these programs; it is to eliminate them at the federal level and leave it to state and local governments to decide whether to continue them — and pay for them.

After three days of campaigning in New Hampshire, which holds the leadoff presidential primary Feb. 24, Reagan complained that his plan has been misrepresented — but added that he thought he had put the issue to rest.

Two Hurt In One-Car Accident

A one-car accident late Wednesday night resulted in injuries to both the driver and his passenger. At 11:30 p.m., David C. Eakin, 31, Route 1, was driving northbound on County Road 511 1.7 miles south of Route 23 when he lost control of his vehicle.

State Highway Patrolman Larry Gilbert who investigated the accident, reports that the car slid on the snow-covered highway and went off the right side of the road. The auto landed on its top.

Both Eakin and his passenger, 39-year-old Jerry R. Westfall of Route 3, were taken to Berger Hospital. Eakin was treated for injuries and released and Westfall was admitted to the hospital.

Snow Covered Roads Cause 22 Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated 22 accidents as the result of snow covered highways by 10 a.m. today and the total was still climbing.

Only two were recorded as injury accidents.

Nineteen-year-old Jacklyn E. Orlosky, Route 3, was treated at the scene for a laceration to the head and nose, when she lost control of her auto on Walnut Creek Pike, 8:35 a.m. Wednesday.

Northbound on Walnut Creek Pike, Ms. Orlosky skidded on an icy spot in the road which caused the vehicle to travel off the left side of the road. The auto struck four guardrail posts before rolling over an embankment.

Deputy James Fite also referred Ms. Orlosky to a physician.

A two-car accident was investigated by Deputy William Carmean, which occurred 5:30 p.m. Wednesday on the Columbus-Darbyville Road.

James L. Burroughs, 22, Route 1, Orient, was traveling north on the Columbus-Darbyville Road when he lost control of his auto on the snow-covered road and traveled left of center striking a southbound auto driven by Dennis B. Green, 27, Route 1, Orient.

Burroughs was transported to Mt. Carmel Hospital for a head laceration.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

For those of you who are now resting with your feet propped upon a foot stool, the Children's Room has books to help you forget the headache you've had for the last two weeks.

Oliver will let his younger sister Bonnie play with him if she'll be the horse, and he can use all of her paper and crayons. "I'll Be the Horse if You'll Play With Me" by Martha Alexander is an interesting study of how children solve their own problems.

"The Chicken's Child" by Margaret Hartelius is a delightful story of a hen that adopts an egg. The egg turns out to be a fast-growing alligator. After the child eats everything from a pie to a tractor he is banished from the farm, but returns a hero. This is a wordless book for the preschool child. The story should first be explained to the child, then he can "read" the pictures himself, or use his vast imagination to make up a story to fit the pictures.

For the child who likes heavy construction machines "Dig, Drill, Dump, Fill" by Tana Hoban is just the book. Presented by photographs are loaders, rollers, dump trucks, and other heavy equipment. What they are and what they do are simply explained.

When he comes home from school to find Milton, his Great Dane, missing Richard expects the worst. Instead Richard finds a surprise awaiting him across the hall. "Is Milton Missing" by Steven Kroll is sure to please the dog lover in your family.

Fond of frogs? "One Frog Too Many" by Mercer Mayer is another well done wordless book. Frog becomes jealous when his young owner receives a new frog as a birthday gift. The silent treatment helps change frog's mind.

Two new books arrived this week. One too late for Christmas, but still a pleasing story is "Morris's Disappearing Bag" by Rosemary Wells. Too young to enjoy his older brother's and sister's gifts, Morris feels rejected until he discovers a very special package that had been overlooked.

The other new book of the week is for the Danny Dunn fans. "Danny Dunn; Scientific Detective" by Jay Williams. A robot bloodhound help Danny and his friends solve the mystery of a disappearing department-store manager. There's fun, excitement, and suspense in this fast-moving story.

Whatever your reading pleasure — see us first in the Children's Room!

Postmaster Asks Customers To Keep Approaches Cleared

The cooperation of rural and suburban postal customers in helping to keep private roads passable and approaches to mail boxes clear during the coming winter months was requested today by Postmaster Harry L. Payne.

"Postal customers are responsible for keeping approaches to their mail boxes clear of snow and other obstructions that would make mail delivery difficult or impossible," Postmaster Payne said. "People should be aware that failure to clear paths to mail boxes promptly after heavy snows may temporarily prevent carriers from making deliveries. Customers will be contacted if they have an obstructed mail box."

There may also be a need to ask postal customers to relocate their boxes on a new line of travel if excessive and extended detours are necessary, the postmaster said.

"Highway officials are responsible for keeping public roads passable and in good repair," Postmaster Payne said. "But in areas where mail service is approved over roads not maintained by road authorities, the owner of the road is responsible."

Rural and star route carriers will make every reasonable effort to serve the greatest number of customers during severe weather, the postmaster said. "But service on foot when roads are impassable is not required. Also, when state highway authorities or local police consider road travel hazardous, postal service may be curtailed until the inclement weather abates," he said.

The postmaster urged anyone with a question on winter weather road conditions and mail service to contact the Circleville post office.

Woman Hurt In Accident

Vivian Brown, 40, 355 Edwards Rd., suffered minor injuries when the brakes on her car apparently failed and she crashed into a tree on N. Court St., just north of Pleasant St.

Ms. Brown told Circleville Police Ptl. Ron Smith that she was driving south on Court St. 2:34 p.m. Wednesday when the brakes on her car failed as she was attempting to slow the car's speed.

The car slid to the right side of the road, ramming into a tree, and continued back across the roadway. It came to rest over the curb on the east side of the street.

Ms. Brown was treated for elbow and arm injuries.

It was one of only three accidents investigated by Police Wednesday and Thursday.

None of the others involved injuries, although both were two-car accidents. One occurred 2:15 p.m. at the intersection of E. Main and Mingo Sts., and the other at 7:08 p.m. at the intersection of Northridge and Georgia Rds.

Paint Valley Mental Health Board To Meet

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board will hold a full Board meeting on January 14 at 7 p.m. at the Administrative Offices located at 38½ S. Paint St., Chillicothe.

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board holds the responsibilities of planning, coordinating, evaluating and serving as a funding vehicle for State and Federal money earmarked for community mental health services. The Board serves a five-county area consisting of Fayette, Highland, Pickaway, Pike and Ross Counties.

All meetings are open to the public.

10 County Offices Up For Grabs

Candidates are now procuring petitions to formally announce their desire to seek Pickaway County offices which are up for grabs in the 1976 election.

Democratic and Republican Party candidates are vying for the nomination of county Engineer, Recorder, Treasurer, Common Pleas Judge, Sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney, Coroner, two Commissioners, Clerk of Courts and County Central Committeeman, for the Primary Election, June 8 which will give them a place on the November election ballot.

Petitions must be returned to the Board of Elections by March 25 with no less than 50 and no more than 250 signatures.

Voter registration is open to city and county residents until May 10. Any change of address or women recently married are required to register for the election.

Phantom Workers Sentenced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sentences of six months to 5 years each have been handed out to three persons who worked on the 1974 election recount for former Gov. John J. Gilligan while being carried on the payroll of the state Department of Taxation.

Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Paul W. Martin said in sentencing the so-called phantom workers: "In this climate of public mistrust, people who mishandle and manipulate state funds must serve some time in jail."

He said after some jail time is served by the three he would consider suspending a portion of their sentences.

The three—Elaine M. Fortney, 26, of Cleveland Heights; Thomas J. George, 24, of Lakewood; and Richard R. Sarge, 25, formerly of Cleveland who now lives in Texas—are free on bond.

David H. Bodiker, the attorney for the trio, said his clients almost certainly would appeal.

Mrs. Doris Woodyard, 229 Watt St., has been dismissed from Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus.

Storekeeper Foils Thugs

CLEVELAND (AP) — A pair of men who robbed a South Euclid jewelry store Wednesday were apparently thwarted from a major robbery by a storekeeper who punched one of them in the stomach.

Cecelia Stone, 55, a clerk at Dicker & Dicker Jewelry said one of the men entered the store and she asked if she could help him.

"In a minute," she quoted the man as saying.

She said he then pulled his ski cap down, yanked a pistol out of his pocket and announced the robbery.

The robber was joined by an accomplice who tried to tie the three persons in the store with tape, police said. But when one of the robbers put his gun down to tie the victims, store owner Rudolph Dicker, 52, punched the robber in the stomach.

Police said the two men then ran out of the store, grabbing $500 from the cash register but ignoring valuable jewelry in open display cases.

"They were very nervous and didn't seem to know what they were doing," Mrs. Stone said.

Reagan Budget-Cutting Program Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan describes his $90-billion budget-cutting plan as a move to decentralize government power. An adviser who helped draft it says if the Republican conservative can't sell the proposal to New Hampshire Yankees, he may not deserve to win their presidential primary.

With Reagan's plan emerging as a major issue, President Ford's campaign forces have assembled an item-

by-item account of its price in federal aid to New Hampshire and Florida, two key primary states.

They say the projected cuts would cost New Hampshire at least $28 million in federal aid, and possibly as much as $113 million.

That's not much in federal budget terms — the current federal budget is $374.9 billion — but it is in a state where the budget totals $415 million for the current year and where there is no state income or general sales tax.

In Florida, according to the Ford campaign analysis, the Reagan proposal would cut federal aid by at least $363 million, and possibly by as much as $2.8 billion.

In each case, the lower figure is based on items clearly marked for elimination in the Reagan plan, and the higher one includes categories of aid in the areas he has said should be dropped.

The whole controversy is on paper and almost certainly will stay there no matter who wins the presidency. The Democratic Congress is not about to drop the federal domestic programs Reagan proposes to turn over to the states, among them such things as food stamps, education and welfare aid, school lunch programs and housing subsidies.

It stems from a speech Reagan made in Chicago Sept. 26, advocating a transfer of authority — which means programs, resources and revenues to pay for them — from Washington to state and local governments.

Jeffrey Bell, Reagan's campaign research chief in Washington, said the whole idea is decentralization of government and enhanced local authority. He said the Reagan camp will be happy to have Ford campaigners take it up as an issue.

"We intend to make it a major issue, too," said Bell, a key draftsman of the original Reagan speech. "We think decentralization and getting the power out of Washington is a popular thing."

He said polls conducted for the Reagan campaign nationally and in New Hampshire support that belief.

"Northern New England is the home of the town meeting," Bell said in an interview. "If we can't sell the concept of decentralization and local responsibility there, then maybe we don't deserve to win."

"Federal authority has clearly failed to do the job," Reagan said in the original Chicago speech. "Indeed, it has created more problems in welfare, education, housing, food stamps, Medicaid, community and regional development and revenue sharing, to name a few...."

"Transfer of authority in whole or part in all these areas would reduce the outlay of the federal government by more than $90 billion, using the spending levels of fiscal 1976," the former California governor said.

Reagan said that would make possible a 23 per cent income tax cut, and a $5 billion start on paying off the national debt. He acknowledged there might have to be state tax increases, so states could take over payments on the programs they decide to continue.

According to a two-page account put together by Reagan's Washington staff, the proposed reductions would cut federal spending to a level $81.9 billion below that of the administration budget for the year that ends on June 30. Because of inflation and congressional spending increases, the reductions actually would exceed $90 billion.

Reagan had said that would provide room for a $25-billion personal income tax cut and a $5-billion budget surplus.

But taxes already have been cut, at an $18-billion-a-year rate, and the federal deficit is expected to total $70 billion to $74 billion. Some reductions Reagan advocated already have been made. As a result, his proposal would add up to a budget with a relatively small deficit.

Among the programs targeted for cuts under the Reagan plan:

—Welfare, housing and unemployment assistance programs now

budgeted for $16.7 billion would be eliminated.

—Federal aid to public education, temporary jobs, Head Start, vocational training programs would be dropped, for a saving of $13.7 billion.

—Revenue sharing with the states and cities would be ended, cutting $6.3 billion.

—Food stamps and child nutrition programs costing $5.3 billion would be dropped.

—There would be a $5.5-billion cut through elimination of urban renewal, city assistance and redevelopment and antipoverty programs.

—The $7.2-billion Medicaid program, which helps pay for medical care for nearly 26 million lower-income Americans, would be dropped.

—A $1.5-billion postal subsidy would be eliminated, with a requirement that the Postal Service balance its budget "at the same time yielding its monopoly on first class mail."

—Mass transportation aid, and all except interstate highway programs would be cut to save $5.1 billion.

—Reagan would eliminate $2.7 billion for air traffic control, air safety and other air transportation programs, on grounds that airlines and their passengers should pay for that.

—The defense budget would not be affected, but Reagan would cut $2 billion in military pension costs by putting them on a contributory basis.

Reagan's proposal is not necessarily to do away with all these programs; it is to eliminate them at the federal level and leave it to state and local governments to decide whether to continue them — and pay for them.

After three days of campaigning in New Hampshire, which holds the leadoff presidential primary Feb. 24, Reagan complained that his plan has been misrepresented — but added that he thought he had put the issue to rest.

Ms. Brown was treated for elbow and arm injuries.

It was one of only three accidents investigated by Police Wednesday and Thursday.

None of the others involved injuries, although both were two-car accidents. One occurred 2:15 p.m. at the intersection of E. Main and Mingo Sts., and the other at 7:08 p.m. at the intersection of Northridge and Georgia Rds.

Paint Valley Mental Health Board To Meet

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board will hold a full Board meeting on January 14 at 7 p.m. at the Administrative Offices located at 38½ S. Paint St., Chillicothe.

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board holds the responsibilities of planning, coordinating, evaluating and serving as a funding vehicle for State and Federal money earmarked for community mental health services. The Board serves a five-county area consisting of Fayette, Highland, Pickaway, Pike and Ross Counties.

All meetings are open to the public.

10 County Offices Up For Grabs

Candidates are now procuring petitions to formally announce their desire to seek Pickaway County offices which are up for grabs in the 1976 election.

Democratic and Republican Party candidates are vying for the nomination of county Engineer, Recorder, Treasurer, Common Pleas Judge, Sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney, Coroner, two Commissioners, Clerk of Courts and County Central Committeeman, for the Primary Election, June 8 which will give them a place on the November election ballot.

Petitions must be returned to the Board of Elections by March 25 with no less than 50 and no more than 250 signatures.

Voter registration is open to city and county residents until May 10. Any change of address or women recently married are required to register for the election.

Phantom Workers Sentenced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sentences of six months to 5 years each have been handed out to three persons who worked on the 1974 election recount for former Gov. John J. Gilligan while being carried on the payroll of the state Department of Taxation.

Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Paul W. Martin said in sentencing the so-called phantom workers: "In this climate of public mistrust, people who mishandle and manipulate state funds must serve some time in jail."

He said after some jail time is served by the three he would consider suspending a portion of their sentences.

The three—Elaine M. Fortney, 26, of Cleveland Heights; Thomas J. George, 24, of Lakewood, and Richard R. Sogree, 25, formerly of Cleveland who now lives in Texas—are free on bond.

David H. Bodiker, the attorney for the trio, said his clients almost certainly would appeal.
